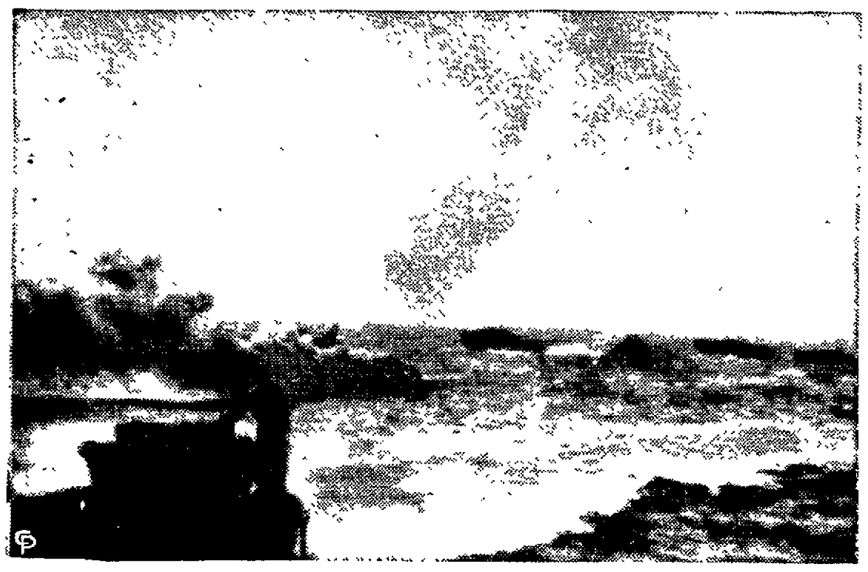
FORTRESSES BLAST JAP FLEET

Allied Commandos Land In France --- and Bring Back Prisoners



Smoke of battle swirling around them, invasion barges loaded with Commandos and American Rangers arrive, (left) on the French coast to launch the raid on Dieppe. Shells from German surface craft and shore defenses burst around the Allied barges as they moved into shore to land thousands of Americans, Canadians, British and Fighting French forces on Nazi-held soil for their assault. At right, battle-grimed Allied soldiers lead two blindfolded Germans ashore at an English port as the triumphant Rangers and Commandos returned from their extensive raid on the Dieppe area of occupied France. Many Nazis were reported captured and brought to England for questioning.

Reported Lashing at Enemy Craft Trying To Make Counter-Attack on Marines In Three Islands; Tokyo Reports Battle In Gilbert Isles.

(By Associated Press)

Giant U. S. Army flying fortresses were reported launching a big attack on Japanese warships off the Solomon islands today as the enemy apparently moved to strike back at American Marines now occupying at least three islands in the southeast of the 900-mile-long archipelago.

A British broadcast indicated the attack was developing and said details were being awaited.

Previous reports from New Zealand had said the enemy was massing naval forces for a counter blow against the marines in the Tulagi area.

Meanwhile, imperial Tokyo headquarters asserted today a small force of American troops effected a landing at dawn Aug. 17 on Makin island in the Gilbert islands, 2,400 miles southwest of Hawaii, but were "repulsed completely" by the Jap garrison.

The Jap report, unconfirmed elsewhere, said the landing party consisted of about 200 troops.

Seized by the Japs at the outset of the war the former British-owned Gilbert islands lie on the equator just below powerful enemy bases in the Marshall islands and 1,100 miles northeast of the Solomon islands.

In the 16-day-old battle of the Solomons Gen. Douglas MacArthur's air scouts searched the South seas in quest of Jap naval activity amid reports that the enemy was massing new strength for a counterblow against U. S. Marines in the Tulagi area.

A navy communique announced last night that the marines now were engaged in mopping up remnants of Jap garrison troops on islands "recently captured" at the eastern end of the 900-mile-long archipelago.

The navy said a Japanese destroyer or cruiser had been set afire by Allied aircraft and declared that bombardments by enemy planes, destroyers and submarines had inflicted only minor damage on Allied shore positions.

The navy's announcement that several islands had been "recently captured" indicated that the marines, cutting through the moun-

Asks 32,000 ALCOA Workers to Strike

CIO Turns Down WLB Pay Ruling

(By United Press)

PITTSBURGH—Officials of the Aluminum Workers of America (CIO) were asking 32,000 workers in Aluminum Company of America plants today to strike against a war labor board decision that denied them a $1 a day wage increase.

If they struck, the whole war production program might be strangled. An army air force representative said the Aluminum Company of America was "our major source of supply."

A directing conference of the international union unanimously rejected the WLB decision yesterday and ordered a subcommittee to prepare a rank-and-file vote to authorize President N. A. Zonarich to call a strike when he "deems necessary."

The conference agreed, however, to meet again with representatives of the war department, the war production board and the army air and ordnance divisions.

The strike threat had immediate repercussions. Rudy Charney, financial secretary of the Mine Mill and Smelter Workers (CIO) local at Cleveland, denounced Zonarich as a "meddler" and said there would be no strike under any conditions at the Cleveland plant of the Aluminum Company of America.

The executive board of the Cleveland union, which holds bargaining rights for 7,000 workers, said it was not satis-

SENT TO ARMY

Judge 'Sentences' Three To Armed Forces.

Three Mansfield colored youths who have been on probation in common pleas court had been released today by Judge C. H. Huston who ordered them to join the armed forces.

James Eugene Martin, 18, "sentenced" to the navy early this week, was turned down because of his court record and will go into the army Aug. 29, County Probation Officer David Lantz said. Martin had been on probation for unarmed robbery and was brought back into court for violating his probation.

Walter Carr, placed on probation several months ago for breaking into an Isaly store in Mansfield was released to go into the army. Love Jacobs, on probation for breaking and entering, joined the navy today after the court terminated the probation.

MANSION BURNS

Damage to 30-room Estate Set at More Than $300,000.

SANDS POINT, N. Y.—(INS)—The 30-odd room mansion of Margaret Emerson, widow of the late Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt was almost a total loss today as the result of a fire which swept the structure from cellar to roof. Damage was estimated in excess of $300,000.

The estate, known as Cedar Knoll was discovered afire by one of the staff of 15 servants. All reached safety without injury.

FALLS UNDER TRAIN WHEELS

Willard Railroader, 21, Dies of Injuries; Had Been Rail Switchman 10 Days.

WILLARD—A switchman for less than two weeks, Junior Elwood Hauck, 21, of Willard received fatal injuries late yesterday when he fell under a line of tank cars he was switching in the Baltimore and Ohio railroad yards here.

Hauck died at Willard municipal hospital today at 2:50 a. m. His left leg was cut off at the hip when he was caught by the cars.

Hauck has been working for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad for more than a year but he was transferred to the switching job only 10 days ago.

Hauck was born in Willard and was a graduate of Willard high school. He was a member of the United Brethren church. Survivors are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton E. Hauck; and a sister Virginia, all of Willard.

The body was removed to the Fink funeral home, pending funeral arrangements.

HALT SHIPMENTS

Officials Ban Movement of Petroleum in 20 States.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Movement of petroleum products by tank car in 20 middle and southwestern states has been ordered stopped immediately, Representative Rogers (D-Mass.) said today she had been informed by the petroleum co-ordinator's office.

Mrs. Rogers said that the move would free from 6,000 to 7,000 tank cars for use in transporting gasoline, oil, and fuel oil to the rationed east coast.

START PAVING

Workmen Begin Resurfacing Route 42 Today.

Release by the War Production Board of sufficient material to complete the project permitted the Mansfield Asphalt Paving company to start work today on the resurfacing of U. S. Route 42 over several east side streets and around Central park.

Crews began spreading "black top" on Ashland hill where Route 42 and Grace streets intersect in Coolridge Heights.

Service Director Fred B. Wolff said today that the waterworks department would complete reconstruction of water mains along the route before the repaving crews reach the section affected by this project.

Reveals Navy Victory Before Raid on Dieppe

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following dispatch is from Larry Meier, International News Service staff correspondent who was wounded while "covering" American Commando forces on the daring raid against Dieppe. Meier, now in a London hospital recovering from face and chest shrapnel wounds, reveals the American and British forces achieved a naval victory at the outset of the battle.)

By LARRY MEIER

(International News Service Staff Correspondent)

LONDON—Nazi shipping in the English channel, like the German defense forces on the occupied coast of France, was caught unawares by the large Commando assault on Dieppe and suffered sudden, unexpected losses, this correspondent can reveal today.

What at first appeared to be a Nazi trap seeking to destroy the Allied units moving in the darkness across the channel proved to be an enemy convoy which never thought our naval craft were in the vicinity.

In the resultant battle two Nazi Flak ships equipped with anti-aircraft guns were sent to the bottom.

The sea opposition was entirely accidental and ended with a minor maritime triumph for the American Ranger forces and their British Commando counterparts even before they won their laurels in the Dieppe battling.

I was with the British and Americans when they put out through the black night toward the Normandy coast.

We ran into the Nazi tanker convoy running the channel.

A furious battle ensued.

TAX PAYMENTS HIT HIGH PEAK

$650,000 Total Expected For More Than 100 Per Cent Half-Year Collection.

County Treasurer Charles C. Payne predicted today that county real estate tax receipts for the last half of the year will exceed $650,000 to give the county more than a 100 per cent collection for the year.

When the tax books closed officially last night the treasurer had collected $607,106 and tardy payments continued to come in today. Collections yesterday totaled $48,081.

The treasurer said he had received a large number of checks by mail that have not been figured into the total receipts. These checks and late payments at the office are being counted on to bring the total past the $650,000 mark.

Payne collected $707,000 during the first half of the year, but that total included some payments for the last-half which were made in advance.

To collect more than the year's charge the treasurer must get substantial payments on delinquent tax accounts to more than balance the current taxes that are left unpaid. When the second-half collection began delinquencies amounted to $153,000.

ADD TO REWARD

Butler Residents Contribute To Solve Vandalism Acts.

Residents of the Butler village school district had posted a reward in an unannounced amount today with M. C. Matthews, village marshal, in another move to effect the arrest and prosecution of the person or persons responsible for acts of vandalism against Kinsey R. Morgan, school board member, and the theft of $70 and two typewriters from the school building.

The reward will supplement $200 offered this week by county commissioners at the request of village residents who want the offenders tracked down.

Following the Butler school strike last winter after Supt. Willard Weekley was temporarily suspended, Morgan has been victimized five times. His auto tires and tubes were cut and his work harness destroyed. Sand was placed in his automobile motor, iron stakes were driven into his wheat field, and his cows were painted with white lead.

UP A MILLION

Ohio Sheep Raisers' Crop Swells in Value This Year.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio sheep raisers found their crop worth about a million dollars more this year than in 1941, the cooperative crop reporting service estimated today.

Increased production coupled with higher prices for both wool and mutton lined farmers' pockets more heavily than usual as wartime requirements for cloth and meat provided a ready market for the Ohio crop.

Digs Up Old Law to Prevent Women From Driving Taxies

An old state statute, once declared constitutional, has been dug up by the Ohio Industrial Relations Department to prevent Ohio women from taking over the "strenuous" job of cab driving as women in other states and England have done since war was declared.

Although up until a month ago Mansfield had two women "cabbies" for the period of a few weeks the city's taxi system was unaffected by the order today. One of the drivers became a dispatcher for the cab company by whom she was employed and the other sought another position.

Two feminine hack drivers at Willoughby were put out of business yesterday when an inspector for the department informed them they were violating the law, a United Press dispatch from Columbus said today.

Lillian Barney, 32, and Leah Epstein, 26, who had been driving cabs in Willoughby for the last five months were ordered to park their hacks and hang up their cabby caps.

Meanwhile, throughout the state today at least a score or more of feminine taxi drivers were behind

WARNS OF RISE IN FOOD COST

Henderson Says Present Trend To Boost Cost 30 Per Cent Within a Year.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Price Administrator Leon Henderson declared today that American consumers will be paying 30 per cent more for many important foods a year from now, if the present trend continues.

"The prices in uncontrolled foods are drawing a dangerous pattern," the OPA chief said. "The effect of increases of this magnitude on the average family budget would be most destructive. Inflation would have a large foot in the kitchen, even if OPA continued to succeed in holding the line of prices it has set for the things it is empowered to control.

Henderson said that a survey by the bureau of labor statistics for the period from June 15 to July 15 showed an increase of two and five-tenths per cent in uncontrolled food prices on top of a 1.8 per cent advance in the previous month.

In sharp contrast he pointed out, food prices under OPA controls rose only three tenths of one per cent in the June 15-July 15 period and declined one per cent in the previous month.

The BLS report also showed that

U-Boat Runs Out Of Fuel, Caught By Brazil Fliers

RIO DE JANEIRO—(UP)—The Brazilian air force was reported today to have captured a U-boat, the second put out of action since a sea and air search was started for the submarines that sank five Brazilian ships in coastal waters a week ago.

Capt. Silvio Montoura of the Brazilian air force was reported to have arrived here to report on the capture. The submarine was taken, it was said, after it had exhausted its fuel and rations, and was escorted to Fernando Noronha island.

The 160 Germans Brazil had detained as hostages for 11 Brazilians seized by the Germans in Compeigne, France, were expected to be sent into the interior, along with other Axis nationals and sympathizers, as labor battalions.

The Germans were prevented from sailing for Lisbon on the Brazilian diplomatic liners Bage and Cuayaba, with 40 Axis diplomats. The diplomats were permitted to leave.

CLIPPED WINGS: German Air Power Crippled In Coast Raid

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—The clipped wings of the German air force in western Europe ranked today as the first big dividend of Dieppe.

Allied mastery of the air now is complete, not only over Britain and the channel but even deep into enemy territory itself.

This was proved by the extraordinary show of Allied airpower yesterday with virtually no opposition and apparently without the loss of a single plane, over German-held soil.

In daylight 500 fighters swept across the French coast where never before had more than 300 planes made such a raid at one time—and a force of the United States' big four-engined flying fortresses rained explosives on the Amiens railway yards without sighting a Nazi fighter over the target.

The smoke of battle has lifted from ruined Dieppe but Britons regarded Wednesday as a day of Allied triumph—a victory on the field itself; a help to Soviet Russia, and a step forward in the whole master plan of the United Nations.

A communique summarizing the raid called it a "successful demonstration of coordination of all three services"—land, sea and air.

Here was its profit and loss account:

Gains:

Ninety-one German planes definitely destroyed with "about twice that number probably destroyed or damaged";

Two gun batteries destroyed;

A radio location station destroyed;

Two small vessels sunk;

Heavy casualties inflicted on the Germans.

Prisoners captured.

Losses:

Ninety-eight Allied planes lost;

The destroyer Berkeley, 904 tons, sunk.

"Fairly large number" of landing craft destroyed.

The loss of some tanks which the attackers were ordered to blow up.

Heavy casualties although there

SLAUGHTER: Soviets Bayonet Nazi Attackers at Don Bend

BULLETIN

(By United Press)

The Russian radio told the German people today, in a broadcast directed to the Reich and Nazi-occupied Europe, that "the second front will come very soon, sooner than German propaganda attempts to convince you."

(By Associated Press)

Bayonet-charging Russian troops were reported today to have slaughtered all but a few Germans who stormed across the Don river before Stalingrad for the second time in 12 hours, and Soviet dispatches declared the invaders had suffered another setback in bloody fighting south of the great Volga steel city.

A bulletin from Red army headquarters said Russian infantrymen and tank crews, battling to hold the bend of the Don as a final barrier before Stalingrad, "almost annihilated an enemy group which crossed the river."

The fighting centered in the Kletskaya-Kalach region, 50 miles west of Stalingrad.

In the Kotelnikovski sector 95 miles below Stalingrad the Russians reported they had driven back German tanks and motorized infantry.

In the Caucasus, the Russians conceded new reverses as hard-fighting Soviet troops executed a further retreat south of Krasnodar, only 60 miles from the Black sea naval base of Novorossisk.

The Russians also acknowledged that German vanguards had made some advance southeast of Pyatigorsk in a drive toward the Grozny oil fields.

Meanwhile, the Russians proudly marked the first anniversary of the siege of Leningrad, where the Red army, aided by the city's 3,000,000 civilian population, has held the Germans at bay for 12 months.

Heavy local fighting still raged around the northern metropolis.

ALLIES CLIP NAZIS' WINGS IN AIR FIGHT

Score Major Plane Victory In Commando Attack on French Coast.

still was no official figure on the invaders' number or their ratio of losses.

The air triumph, generally regarded as the biggest of all the successes, was the outcome of an unplanned battle. Thus, in an RAF-made crisis, British observers said, the Germans lost more than one-third of their operational aircraft in the west in one day and now must divert bombers and fighters from Russia.

Evidence that the Nazis were hit a staggering blow to their bomber strength as well as their fighter forces was the feeble counter-punch over Britain the past two nights.

The only appearance of hostile planes last night was over the south coast, the British said, and only a few attacked, briefly, causing but slight damage. One was reported shot down.

An informed British air observer said the Germans air command was caught napping Wednesday and had to meet hundreds of RAF fighters at first with 50 Messerschmitts "which were swept away like flies."

Later, he said, they called in every plane they could get from the low countries and put 400 into the air. Many of these, however, never were able to penetrate the Allied air cordon and either were turned away or shot down.

The bulk of the "invasion in miniature" was made up of Canadian Commandos. British Commandos were the second largest group and the Fighting French and United States Rangers were, relatively, only a smattering of the Allied forces.

Tells How Americans Destroyed Pill Box

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND —(U.P.)— Five men of United States Ranger Sgt. Kenneth D. Stempson's 12-man group came back from Dieppe but they got their pill boxes and permitted a commando demolition squad to get to a costal battery and blow it up.

Stimpson, 23, of Russell, Minn.; Corporal William R. Brady, 23, Grand Forks, N. Dak.; Sgt. Alex Szima, 22, Dayton, O., and Capt. Roy Murray, Berkeley, Calif., who led the Ranger detachment in the Allied raid told their stories today, and Murray summed it up:

"I saw that day everything a man could see."

"It was hotter than hell," said Stempson, as had so many others in the raid. "My group of 12 was assigned to knock out the pill boxes and clear the way for demolition men to get their battery. "We landed right on the beach and I didn't even get my feet wet.

"We scaled a 150-foot cliff. I squirmed forward on my belly. A German sniper got busy. We fired everything at him but he was well concealed, and then the machine guns got busy.

"We were so close we could hear the Heinie corporals calling out orders, but the Heinies fell back from the pill boxes to higher ground just beyond.

"We silenced the pill boxes, and our biggest job then was to get back to the beach where the landing craft was to pick us up. We had to travel through a deep gulley and the machine guns got us there. More of our boys got it. But we reached the beach.

"It was a hell of a bitter affair. There were only five of us at the end. The ones who were killed were English commandos. I had known them about three weeks. We had to leave some of our boys there where they fell."

Nazis Remove 700 Wounded After Raid

MOSCOW—(INS)—Ambulance trains containing 700 wounded German troops passed through Paris Wednesday night following the Commando raid on Dieppe, the Soviet news agency Tass reported from Geneva today.

Two hundred Frenchmen were arrested after the Allies withdrew "because of their hostile attitude toward German troops."

Delayed Action Bombs Cause More Havoc

VICHY—(INS)—Delayed action incendiary bombs left behind by the Commandos who wrecked the channel city of Dieppe are causing new fires and havoc in the German coastal stronghold, Fernand de Brinon, the Vichy government's ambassador to Paris, reported today.

Latest reports from the perfect of the Seine-Interieure department and from the sub-perfect of Dieppe itself said that damage to the city was extremely heavy, De Brinon's advices said.

Civilian casualties totaled 36 killed and 63 wounded, De Brinon said. He listed Allied prisoners at 1,800.

Report RAF Raid Near Copenhagen

LONDON —(INS)— Strong forces of Royal Air Force bombers flew over the Copenhagen region during the night and heavy explosions were heard for more than an hour, a Vichy dispatch to Reuter's news agency said today.

The Vichy report said that windows in homes and other buildings on the Swedish coast in the vicinity of Malmoe were rattled violently as a result of the blasts.

WARNS OF RISE IN FOOD COST

Henderson Says Present Trend To Boost Cost 30 Per Cent Within a Year.

prices of all unregulated goods and services advanced one and six-tenths per cent, while prices of controlled items showed a nominal increase of one-tenth of one per cent, largely as result of higher prices allowed for gasoline and fuel oil in the east. Most of this latter increase later was rescinded by OPA.

"If the June 15-July 15 rate of increase—two and five-tenths per cent—were projected over a year, and this is anything but a fanciful projection, we would be paying an average of 30 per cent more for many important food stuffs 12 months hence," Henderson said.

"Cost of living figures are now just dry statistics. Every advance means that Americans are spending more dollars and cents to live; every decline is a victory to keep the cost of living down."

Henderson said that the increase of three-tenths of one per cent in prices of controlled foods could be attributed to three factors: (1) Some ceiling prices, such as milk, were raised in certain areas to iron out inequities; (2) below ceiling price sales came to an end and retail stores restored their prices to the alowance maximum; (3) the over-present possibility of small scale violation of the price ceilings.

Henderson said that minor fluctuations in controlled prices would continue, since it was OPA's aim to control and administer prices, not to "freeze them."

Henderson reported important gains on the recent control front, asserting that rents in Baltimore, for example, declined 7 per cent. In 20 other cities covered by the BLS survey, 13 of which are under OPA rent control, an over-all decline of seven-tenths per cent took place in rents.

Doubts If Council Can Legally Curb Shrub Planting

Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals today expressed doubt as to whether or not council can "legislate away" shrubbery on private lawns or boulevards where it is considered a hazard to motorists.

Boals' comments were occasioned by questioning regarding the likely introduction of such proposed legislation at the next session of council. Councilman George C. Kyle, member-at-large, this week was advised by Clerk of Council Robert Black that no ordinances are on record relating to shrubs.

"There are a number of hazards from shrubbery obstructing view to cross streets," Boals said. "These exist throughout the city. In many instances property owners have co-operated with the police department by trimming back or removing entirely the shrubs which cause 'blind spots.' However, past investigations have indicated there can be no 'deglislating away' of privately-owned property."

There is an ordinance, adopted in 1914, regulating the trimming of trees, Black said. This legislation provides that trees abutting streets, alleys or other highways must be trimmed of overhanging branches up to a level 15 feet above the pavement.

Incidentally, this ordinance prohibits planting of a "North Carolina Poplar" tree on any boulevard because of its extensive roots which may hamper sewers.

New York Dems Name Bennett

New York State Attorney General John J. Bennett is congratulated, above, by neighbors at his Brookiyn home after winning an overwhelming victory to gain the Democratic nomination for governor of New York state. Bennett, choice of James A. With Bennett on the porch of their home are his wife and his daughter, Mary Lou.

Digs Up Old Law to Prevent Women From Driving Taxies

the wheels of their cabs, not knowing that the industrial relations department had inaugurated a program of "rigid enforcement" of the law forbidding women in the field.

The law prohibiting women as cab drivers was written into the statutes in 1923. It was declared unconstitutional in 1928 by Franklin county Common Pleas Judge John R. King, who said that it was "an unwarranted and unreasonable restriction upon personal liberty and the choice of occupation and not within the proper exercise of police power."

A spokesman for the industrial relations department made it plain that "it's illegal for women to drive taxis," and said "we're enforcing the law wherever we find any violations."

He added that no violations of the act had been brought to court recently because "women drivers always stop when ordered to do so by the inspector."

E. G. Scheussler, chief counsel for the attorney general, is inclined to think that the law is unconsfitutional, but said that "since Judge King's opinion was rendered in a common pleas court, it does not affect the remainder of the state."

Scheussler said that he did not think cab driving was any more strenuous than "any of a dozen or so occupations" women are now engaged in but added:

"That is, unless of course you take into the matter public safety. Then you run into the question of whether a woman driver is more reckless than a man driver. That's a question I don't think I'd like to tackle."

fied with the WLB decision, but was "in no way connected with any movement to mislead the workers by creating a strike in the industry."

Although the WLB denied a wage increase, it ordered maintenance of union membership at all plants except Cleveland. The company accepted the decision under protest.

Warns U. S. to Act If Workers Strike

WASHINGTON — (INS) — War labor board officials said today that the WLB will not act to prevent a general strike in the aluminum industry, but they warned that a walkout by 32,000 workers would be met by drastic government action.

Expressing belief that there is no danger of an immediate strike, officials said that WLB will just "sit back and watch developments."

WLB spokesmen said the board probably will not even send telegrams to leaders of the CIO's Aluminum Workers of America, warning them that a strike would force the government to seize and operate plants.

Officials emphasized that the government cannot allow a strike in the aluminum industry to tie up the extremely vital output of aluminum, needed in the construction of planes and other implements of war.

It was pointed out that the only action the WLB can take, if the union calls a walkout in defiance of the board's order, is to refer the case to President Roosevelt. This action would presumably mean seizure and operation of the plants shut down by the strike.

The WLB's only report to repeated threats of a strike was to make public its opinion, approved by a vote of 8 to 4, refusing the wage increase to employes of the Aluminum company of America. The union demanded a $1-a-day pay boost.

Fear Major Steel Strike In Canada

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. —(AP)— C. H. Millard, Canadian national director of the United Steel Workers of America (CIO) said last night "any prospect of averting a major stoppage in at least a large part of Canada's basic steel industry is slender indeed."

Millard stated he would appeal to Prime Minister MacKenzie King on behalf of 4,000 steel workers of Sault Ste. Marie and as many more in Sydney, N. S., to bring about a "satisfactory and equitable solution of this most acute problem."

The steel workers of the Algoma Steel corporation plant here and of the Dominion Steel company at Sydney, he said, "are no longer willing to have their rights as citizens or their needs as workers ignored."

Three Assigned to Milking Escape From Reformatory

Three inmates of Ohio State Reformatory, one a Willard youth, made their escape under the cover of darkness last night while working on the late milking detail at the reformatory dairy barns.

Supt. A. L. Glattke said today that the inmates slipped away after they had been sent out to do the 10:30 milking and that despite a search no word had been received on them at noon today.

The three escapees were Vernon Skinner, 23, Willard; Ray Mitchell, 25, Stark county, and Forest Spain, 27, Putnam county.

Skinner was admitted to the reformatory on April 6 from Richland county on an auto theft conviction to serve from one-to-20 years. Mitchell was admitted Jan. 29, 1938, to serve from one to 15 years for burglary and entry and Spain was admitted on Nov. 8, 1934 to serve from 10 to 25 years for robbery.

GILEAD FIRM UNDER INQUIRY

Scrap Dealers Investigated By U. S. in Connection With Price Ceilings.

A Mt. Gilead scrap and iron firm was listed today as one of five Ohio dealers undergoing federal investigation in view of sales to a Marion firm which was enjoined today in Cleveland federal court to cease purchases of scrap in violation of ceiling price regulations.

The H. J. Hull and Son company of Mt. Gilead, was the company named by the legal division of the Office of Price administration which said it was making an intensive investigation of the dealers in view of their sales to the Osgood company of Marion.

The Marion firm, manufacturer of excavating machinery, is under permanent injunction of the federal court in Cleveland to cease illegal purchases of scrap iron and steel.

Judge Emich B. Freed issued the restraining order upon a motion filed by the OPA. The court found that violations of OPA ceilings by the company were not wilful.

Scrap dealers listed along with the Mt. Gilead firm were Balka Iron and Steel company, Alliance; Malo Brothers, Marion; Marion Iron and Steel company, Marion; and the Duberstin Iron and Steel company, Dayton.

DONATES RECEIPTS

IN HOT WATER

LaGuardia Rebuked By Realtors For Heat Ration Plan.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Mayor F. H. LaGuardia is in hot water over his proposal to ration it.

"Ill-advised and unnecessary at this time" was the reaction of a group of realty men to the mayor's program for apartment house operators to provide hot water only during specified periods of the morning and evening as a fuel conservation measure. The realty conferees said that since there was no shortage of coal, used in the great majority of buildings, the move was unnecessary.

PLAN START OF OIL PIPELINE IN BUCYRUS AREA

Engineers To Begin Project Which Will Feed Oil To the East.

BUCYRUS—Headquarters have been established in Bucyrus by the Sheehan Pipelines Construction company of Tulsa, Okla., contractors for the Illinois Pipe Line company, who will build the oil supply line through Ohio which when completed will be a part of the line reaching from Texas to New York.

Guy Fox, superintendent of construction of that portion of the line from Lima to East Sparta, was in Bucyrus today arranging details preparatory to actual construction to start next week. Equipment has been moved in and workers are being employed.

Approximately 300 men will be employed on the local section of the project, Fox stated.

The line will follow the Marion-Crawford county line east and west through this section, passing between Martel and New Winchester.

BUCYRUS—Mrs. A. J. E. Manton, wife of Rev. Manton, pastor of First Methodist church, was employed Thursday as teacher of religious education in Bucyrus public schools. She will replace Miss Betty Baumgartner, whose resignation was submitted to the board in the spring.

Miss Carol Sherer of Marion, has been given the appointment previously but submitted her resignation this week to accept a position in the Marion schools.

Mrs. Manton is a graduate of Ohio Wesleyan university. She has taught Christian education in Drew Theological seminary at Madison, J. J. and also served as pastor's assistant at Christ Presbyterian church in Madison.

BUCYRUS—Last rites will be held in Galion United Brethren church Saturday afternoon at 2 p. m. for the Rev. Ora Ernest Knepp, 69, pastor of the Galion church and former pastor of Bucyrus United Brethren church.

ASHLAND — Ashland county commissioners Thursday approved the 1943 budget for Ashland county calling for $194,290. The budget for next year calls for only a small amount above the budget for this year which was $191,493.

Increase in the budget is mainly due to $12,000 needed for real estate reappraisal next year and which is made only every six years. However the increase in the 1943 budget calls for only a $2,797 increase as reductions are made next year in premiums for the county and Loudonville fairs, in elections and in tuberculin test of cattle.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, AUGUST 21, 1942.

Dakota farmers aren't superstitious—they're working 13 hours a day.

Unheard remark: "My wife plays a much better game of bridge than I do, so I never complain when we're set."

At least one scientist now predicts that this planet will last another 15 trillion years—and "trillion" sounds much more comforting than the few billion years previously granted.

1-A Classification Extended

GREAT need for more men in the United States armed forces is seen in the transfer of registrants from 1-B to 1-A classification, for quick induction into full or limited military service.

This means that minor physical defects, which had previously prevented acceptance, are to be disregarded in cases of registrants capable of performing some kind of military work, if not qualified for actual combat duty, with individual assignments according to physical condition.

Reclassification will also include the "conscientious objector" group, physically fit members of which will be subject to call for service in non-combatant units or civilian work camps.

Entry into what had been the 1-B classification is being made in advance of calling married men with dependents, whose marriage took place before the selective service act became effective.

Extension of the draft law to include registrants in the 18 and 19-year age group is anticipated as a later probable need as United States participation in the war becomes more intense and widespread, but congressional action along this line is not expected until late this year or early in 1943—by which time the war situation may be much changed.

Mansfield and Richland county young men, in excess of 3,000, are already in training or in active combat service in many parts of the world, most recent mention being of two who had a part in this week's sensational commando raid in the Dieppe section of France. Others are in Ireland, Africa, Australia, India—on land and sea and in the air—and it is not unlikely that some will soon be alongside the Russians fighting to stem the tide of Nazi advance in that country.

More and more, as men are being called upon to break home ties and leave familiar surroundings to make the sacrifices and meet the dangers of war, emphasis is given to the great need of civilian co-operation, in order that the nation's fighting men will lack nothing they need to make victory sure—and as speedy as possible.

Farley's Man Wins In New York

NOW that the New York state Democratic convention is over, with Farley's man winning over Roosevelt's man by a majority of 623 to 393, we can go on with the war.

Whether the New York Democratic gubernatorial nomination should go to Attorney General John J. Bennett, jr., the Farley candidate, or to Senator James M. Mead, New Deal favorite who had received the White House blessing, has engaged public attention in the Empire state for the past several weeks, with display of sufficient bitterness to give further proof that war and politics should not be mixed when unity is desired.

The Roosevelt-Farley clash was again brought into the open by this battle—which had nothing to do with winning the war—and, as usual, Mr. Farley demonstrated continued domination of New York state Democratic politics.

Surface amity is again expected between Mr. Farley and Mr. Roosevelt, in an effort to defeat Thomas E. Dewey, who is slated for the Republican gubernatorial nomination next week, as this is customary political procedure, but the national war effort is not helped by such displays of partisan enmities as have just been witnessed.

Taxis Given No Special Privileges

ARREST of a taxi driver on a charge of driving at excessive speed inside the city limits seems to at least partially answer the frequently asked question as to whether taxis are accorded special privileges in the matter of speeding on city streets.

Whatever the practice may have become, intention of law is that speed of all motor vehicles be kept within the prescribed 35-mile maximum in the city and drivers of private cars are quite likely to regard taxis as setting the pace for other motorists.

Under a city ordinance passed December 7, 1937, taxicabs are required to be equipped with governors intended to automatically restrict speed to 45 miles an hour and the charge of the arresting officer that in this instance the taxi passed another car at a speed of 47 miles an hour raises the point of how such speed could be attained if a dependable governor was attached.

It should be kept in mind, however, that it is the 35-mile speed that is permitted on Mansfield streets, NOT the 45-mile governor limit, which is probably intended for use on trips outside the city limits.

Eligibility of taxis for tires and recaps will also be contingent, in all probability, on conformance to the 40-mile speed limit prescribed to conserve rubber.

Temperament Needs a Check-Rein

JOAN CRAWFORD of the movies defines temperament as "the quality that makes one human being differ from another. Another name for personality, temperament encompasses those characteristics which give an actor individuality, color and appeal. Most of the highly successful actors have been temperamental. Not that they threw things at intruders on sound stages or wouldn't rehearse because they weren't in the mood, but because they felt more deeply the emotions they were portraying."

That is all very well for top-flight actors or grand opera singers. For them "temperament" may be the expression of their personalities. For most people, including those of mediocre thespian or musical talent, the word is apt to mean that they are petulant, moody, rebellious, and a nuisance generally. More poise and less petulance contribute to the general welfare.

A safer rule, during the windfall season, is not to sit under the apple tree with ANYBODY.

Simile: As hard to explain as why you have no "use tax" sticker on the windshield.

AS OTHERS SEE THEM

Aviation's Role In Post-War Era

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON— Will post-war aviation re-civilize the world?

While the war lasts it will be monopolized for purely military purposes, destructively. It'll fight independently of other arms, it'll give direction to the others and it'll transport groundling forces and keep them supplied with what they need to keep them in action.

There won't be anything civilizing about it, however, but emphatically contrariwise.

But after the strife is over? Gosh, how the aviatorial art will have been developed, to meet today's bloodthirsty requirements! And won't this development be immediately adaptable to peacetime's convenience!

It takes no expert to recognize that the correct answer is in the affirmative.

There are experts, nevertheless, who say the aveage individual doesn't realize how tremendous the transformation will be or how fast it will manifest itself. It will be, they assert, about 1,000 times as great a change as the one following the railroads' advent and so sudden that it will be on top of the human race overnight almost.

A World Remade.

Railroads, even after their invention, took a lot of building. Stage coaches continued in operation for years after the choo-choo lines were limitedly in operation. The change-over was rather gradual.

Then, again, a railroad train, starting, say, from New York City, can't travel farther than, for example, San Francisco. Indeed, it can't span that terrestrial distance without various changes of cars intermediately.

A water vessel can't keep going indefinitely, either. When it hits land it's got to quit and transfer passengers and freight to rail facilities.

A plane, though, can swish right ahead from New York to the Aleutian islands, from the Aleutians to Tokyo and back again.

That's true—now!

How much truer it will be in the days of post-war!

Now, there are a lot of parts of the world which, though productive and well worth cultivation, are inaccessible by a rail or steamship basis.

Inaccessible Areas.

Central Africa is one of them. Another is mid-South America, known as the Grand Chaco, meaning the "wilderness." They are both teeming with natural wealth and both, up to now, have been inaccessible. There may be regions of great natural wealth, say in the so-called Arctic and Ant-Arctic wastes. If so, the airplane should find and open them to us.

These are the fields that President John H. Jouett of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce urges us to concentrate on.

The dope is, then, that we're going to have an aviatorial world hereafter—not merely as a military proposition, but everlastingly, as something we may as well get used to, an air world in transport, communication and all that sort of thing.

That's how our mail will be carried, that's how our goods will be delivered. We'd better get used to it.

Henry Ford, among others, takes this angle.

And the "new" parts of the world?

Into those dark places the light of civilization will be flown on the ever-expanding wings of mankind.

Fire destroyed automobile and damaged truck in garage at home of Martin Remy, 156 Lexington avenue.

Walter Armstrong, Mansfield high school teacher, became ill while attending summer school in Chicago.

New song, entitled "Mansfield," was published, its composer being Gail Allenbaugh.

TODAY IN HISTORY

This date, 1856, Charter Oak, a tree near Hartford, was blown down in a storm. A discounted tradition tells that here in a hollow of the big tree, a certain Capt. Wadsworth hid the colonial charter of Connecticut from seizure by the British governor-general, Edmund Andros, in 1687.

About Your Morale

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I GATHER my inspirations where I may and this one's from an ad—lead line in Brewing Industry Foundation. No, it wasn't about beer. It was about the thousands of seemingly insignificant things which keep us going during these ghastly days. And it ran—

"MORALE IS A LOT OF LITTLE THINGS."

I don't know who wrote that ad but he has my personal thanks. Lots of them. My own morale was about 10% below par when I read it. I was feeling lower than a wilted fish worm. For days a big ache had been hardening in my throat. That awful need all around me and my own inability to serve it. Our boys—the little tads who had eaten my cookies and raised Cain in my flower garden—going out on ships, planes and subs to God only knows what end. The gentle, smiling nurse—the big laughing doctor—somewhere overseas. And hell waiting to drop down any day now through the fog that once made San Francisco so beautiful—that now veils it in such mortal peril.

Morale? I didn't have enough to fill an eye dropper. What could a woman with graying hair and a tired heart give to the nation she loves in its hour of cruelest need? Oh well—there's no use going into gruesome details. You know how I felt—if you're stranded behind the fighting line yourself—watching the eager, younger ones dash off to do their duty while you stand helpless, doing your job but lacking a place in the Big Parade.

A burnt-out bulb—that's how it hits you. That's how I felt. And then, idly, I picked up that ad—saw that line—"Morale is a lot of little things." And I was back on the beam again.

"Morale is a lot of little things"—that's wise and deep a truth as any man ever uttered . . . and as comforting a one as any man ever gave to the stay-at-homes. Not for us the dizzy excitement of bands and bombs. Not for us the thrill of a beloved flag unfurling against a war-racked sky. Nor even, for most of us, the pride of sleek uniforms, bustling organization rooms, dashing errands. We're too busy or too old. We have jobs to do—homes to hold together—responsibilities we cannot leave. We must keep the Nation going while the other fellow mans the guns. But we can still do our part—

FOR "MORALE IS A LOT OF LITTLE THINGS!"

It's the smile and the pat you give your tired man when he goes to the same old job on the same old bus each morning—the smile that makes him feel he's a fighting patriot instead of a wornout plug.

It's the party you throw for the younger kids, come Friday night—the cakes you bake and the records you buy though your heart is quivering with agony for your first born who was stationed in Bataan.

It's the quiet, friendly comfort with which you go about your work in the kitchen or the office, comforting some other woman's sudden hysteria—soothing a man's gnawing bitterness.

Nothing spectacular about Morale like this. No contact with a national radio hook-up. No shouting audience. No front page publicity or glittering medals.

BUT IT SERVES AND SAVES YOUR COUNTRY AS SURELY AS A THUNDERING BLITZ!

So maybe if your hair is graying above your ears as mine is and you're not so quick on the steps as you used to be . . . and you're feeling left out of the Main Show . . . perhaps it will help to remember—

"MORALE IS A LOT OF LITTLE THINGS!"

Timely Editorial

Bullets, Not Handouts.

Whether or not the air-marker hoax was the impelling motive which caused Secretary Stimson to announce that he is reducing the number of army publicity men, it furnished an excellent illustration of the need for such a reduction

Giving the public adequate factual information about the army's activities is one thing. But promoting news stories for propaganda purposes is another. And too many of the press agents in the army and in other branches of the government have been doing exactly that.

Secretary Stimson says that 75 out of 100 officers assigned to press duties with army agencies outside of the war department public relations bureau will be transferred to combat duty.

That's as it should be! It takes bullets to kill Nazis and Japs. Mimeographed releases won't do the job.—Akron Beacon-Journal.

British Study Commando Tactics As Preliminary to Major Action

—By LOUIS F. KEEMLE

THE LESSONS of the great Commando raid on Dieppe are now being studied by Britain's military heads and will be applied to future assaults leading to the mass invasion of the continent.

The British have learned that such landings are feasible and can calculate approximately the losses they must sustain. The heavy losses suffered in the Dieppe raid are not considered in London to be too high a price to pay for the objects achieved.

The next raid is not likely to come until the British have correlated the information gained at Dieppe. The German prisoners taken will be examined. The men engaged—foot soldiers, tank crews, gunners and airplane pilots — will contribute their observations. All these data will be assembled, sifted, and boiled down into a report for the future guidance of tacticians.

The raids which are expected to precede the general offensive may be on an even larger scale than Dieppe. They will force the Germans to be constantly on the alert along the entire possible "invasion front" from Norway to below Brest.

More important, the enemy will never know which raid is the start of the actual invasion and will have to concentrate their resources against each one as though it were. When the second front is opened, perhaps this fall, perhaps next spring, it will be preceded by a Commando landing on a large scale.

The Commandos will establish a wide beachhead and hold it. Behind them will come the invading army, with divisions of 15,000 men, artillery, tanks and trucks. Overhead a great air armada will blanket the sky.

THE coming raids will be tests which will enable the British to determine with reasonable accuracy whether the Commando spearhead can hold its positions until the vanguard of the main army arrives. The invasion will not come until the high command is reasonably certain of that.

One feature of the Dieppe raid was the air superiority of the Allies, which appears to have been better than two to one. Despite heavy losses, the Germans suffered most heavily and the enemy cannot afford it as well as we can.

Also, in this latest operation the American flying fortresses demonstrated their full value in the aerial offensive against Germany.

The British have raised the objection that the fortresses and Liberators are not as good for night bombing of Germany as the British Lancasters and Stirlings because of the much lighter bomb load they can carry. The point is not disputed and was recognized before our bombers were sent over.

The planes are different types and were designed for different purposes. The British planes are built for short range bombings over Europe with heavy loads. They operate at night because they cannot reach the height the American planes can and are vulnerable by day to anti-aircraft and fighter attack.

THE American planes were designed primarily for use over the long distances of the Pacific. They can operate in daylight at 30,000 feet or more and are hard to hit. From that height, their precision bomb sight enables them to hit their targets with astonishing accuracy. The British night bombings are necessarily not nearly as accurate.

On Monday, 18 fortresses bombed Rouen in France and during the Dieppe action 23 of them bombed the air base at Abbeville. Both attacks were in daylight and all the planes returned.

On the basis of these performances, our bombers can play an important part in the invasion of France.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—These are strange days, but none is stranger than that recently when Bernard M. (for Mannes) Baruch, the 72-year-old patriarch of war production, was appointed head of a three-man board to give the public the lowdown on the rubber situation.

Baruch has been in and out of the war picture for 25 years. He has bounced around in so many government advisory jobs that his latest appointment as chairman of the rubber commission is something of a laugh.

But don't toss it off so easily. There are, in Washington, two schools of thought about Baruch's new job as chief of the B-C-C committee (B for Baruch; C for Dr. James B. Conant, president of Harvard; and C for Dr. Karl Compton, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology).

ONE school leans to the idea that the commission was appointed merely to give prestige to the coming orders on conservation of rubber (mileage control, rationing, etc.). The other claims that Baruch and his associates form the only team in the country that can straighten out the rubber muddle.

Take it any way you like, the phenomenon is "Berny" Baruch. There is no more spine-tingling sight in Washington today than to see this gaunt, white-haired old man holding conferences on a bench in Lafayette Square. It's just across the street from the White House, but that isn't nearly as important as the fact that it's just across the street from Baruch's hotel.

He likes the outdoors. When he's in New York he hardly ever misses a day tramping around the reservoir in Central Park. When he's at "Hobcaw," his South Carolina plantation, he hunts, fishes, rides horseback. In Washington, Lafayette Square is about as far away as he can get from the center of activity that is his hotel suite.

BARUCH brings into the muddled picture an even more muddled political and social personality. He never has objected to being called a gambler and the fortunes he has won and lost on Wall Street make it a deserving title. (But he won't play bridge for more than nominal stakes.) He has been dubbed "advisor to the Presidents" and indeed he has been. (But he has backed more wrong men than anybody in the national picture today — Al Smith for nomination and election, and Governor Ritchie for the nomination against Roosevelt, to mention only two.)

In spite of the fact that he has been identified with Wall Street most of his life, he probably fought longer and harder than any one man to take the profit out of war. For 20 years or so, he battled for agricultural reforms and his farm plan, with considerable variations, was the basis for the New Deal agricultural aid program.

Out of his World war activities as chief of the War Industries Board and later investigations came the M-Day industrial mobilization plans which were forerunners of our present conversion to all-out war and incidentally the basis for Nazi war industrialization.

He has been a vigorous proponent of overall price, rent and wage controls and has frequently expressed his dissatisfaction with the half-way measures of our present anti-inflation program.

Man About Manhattan

Broadway Chatter

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — It is giving no comfort to the enemy and violating no weather secrets to say that "Rain" is very much in the air . . . Broadway will soon have a full ration of Sadie Thompson's hightop white shoes, the Rev. Davidson, schreechy phonograph records, and the mountains of Nebraska . . . Only, this time, it will be Marlene Dietrich who plays the girl-who-fell-by-the-wayside . . . Original "Rain" from a Somerset Maugham short story was by John Colton in collaboration with Maugham. . . . The producing rights now belong to Colton. . . . Veteran Broadway observers remember the original "Rain," with the late Jeanne Eagles, as one of Broadway's greatest excursions. . . . It has had many revivals in many sections of the country, the most noteworthy being Tallulah Bankhead's at the Music Box some five or six years ago. . . . Present plans call for a "musical" Rain, with book and score by Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein . . . Probable production date: Xmas.

MOST N. Y. reporters thought that $100,000 life insurance policy on Ray Bolger, star of "By Jupiter," just another publicity gag—but it wasn't. The producers called him "indispensable, extraordinary and unique." That's quite a handful of praise. . . . Ray is a 38-year-old Irish singing, comedian, dancer who is also an exacrobat who dances on rubber legs and practically carries "By Jupiter," a smash Broadway musical hit. Go down the line and count the other comic-dancers. If anything happens to Bolger, none of his contemporaries could take his place. . . . A reporter for one of the Manhattan dailies cornered the former Bostonian and asked him how his head felt, now that his feet had been valued at a hundred grand. . . . "My head has figured out," responded Ray, "that I'm worth more to the show dead than alive." Bolger is an ex-insurance salesman and inventor of the Lindy Hop, which became nationally famous when Lindbergh flew the Atlantic in 1927.

I HAVE it straight from the maid who has it straight from the chauffeur of an employe of the Hays office that one whole sequence of Joan Crawford's latest picture, "They All Kissed the Bride," was cut out because one of Joan's hats was too seductive. . . . Just how seductive can a hat be, and just who can make a hat that can upset the Hays office to this extent? The man who made all Joan's hats for this pix is Walter Florell, a Frenchman, son of an antique dealer, who used to earn his living as a ballet dancer before he discovered Hollywood and the way to promotion and pay via millinery. Florell also makes hats for Garbo, Gertrude Lawrence, and Gypsy Rose Lee, who takes off everything, including her hat, when she appears before her dear public in "Star and Garter," the rich man's burlesque show on Broadway.

A Farmer's Diary

Joseph Meister

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

IN A SMALL village in France, in 1883, a nine-year-old boy, while on his way to school, was attacked by a mad dog. The raging animal was upon him so suddenly that he could not run, but fought with book and slate until he was bitten fourteen times, then fell, screening his face with his arms.

A bricklayer, attracted by the child's cries, beat off the frothing dog with a heavy iron bar. The child was carried home to die, for up until that time, no one had ever survived the bite of a rabid dog.

Two days later the little boy's mother brought him to the scientific laboratory of Louis Pasteur. This holy man, the mother reasoned, had saved the sheep from anthrax, had saved the hogs from cholera, and cured the ailing herds of cattle on many farms. How much more precious was her son than all of these—she implored Pasteur to save him, too.

The scientist explained that it would mean taking a grave chance. His treatment for rabies had been tried out on animals, but never on a human being.

"You can cure him," she declared, with folded hands. And her faith was like that of her who touched the Master's garment.

Pasteur was a meek, humble, devout man. He prayed as he took the boy into his keeping. He injected a liquid prepared from a portion of a rabbit's brain.

It was a terrible moment. A human life was in the balance. Louis Pasteur yearned to snatch the boy from death. Each following inoculation was made with stronger vaccine. The boy continued to play in the Pasteur garden, without symptoms of the dread disease.

The treatment lasted ten days. Joseph Meister was inoculated twelve times. The boy lived, and was healthy. Pasteur restored young Meister to his mother, and thanked God—as many generations of sufferers have done since—for a great scientific boon to all humanity.

METHODIST CIRCLES HAVE ENTERTAINMENT

Women Hold Regular Meetings With Luncheons: Talk, Social Time, Colored Slides and Play Enjoyed.

FOUR CIRCLES of the First Methodist church met yesterday for their regular monthly meetings. Hostess for Circle Two was H. J. Seevers, R. D. 4, for a covered-dish dinner. In attendance were 15 members and two guests, Mrs. Roy Nixon and Mrs. Kenneth Cooke.

In charge of devotions was Mrs. Emma Emminger and the business meeting was conducted by the president. Mrs. A. E. Planck gave a chapter from the book entitled, "For the Facing of This Hour." The Sept. 17 hostess will be Mrs. L. A. Palmer, 200 Taylor road.

Colored slides were shown to Circle Three when 16 members met at the home of Mrs. G. W. Griswold, 104 Dawson avenue. Guests were Mrs. O. G. Place, general president of the W. C. S. and Mrs. L. H. Edwards. Mrs. F. M. Frizzell led the business session.

Mr. Griswold then showed the women a collection of colored slides of scenes from the Rocky Mountain National park, Garden of the Gods in Colorado and from the Ohio river. A social time was had in the garden where refreshments were served buffet style by Mrs. C. A. Fox and Mrs. H. L. Hemphill. Place for the next meeting will be announced.

The L. D. Bowers' cabin on Park Avenue west road was the gathering scene for Circle Four when 17 members met and welcomed their guest, Mrs. D. W. Allen, as a new member. Mrs. G. W. DeYarmon led devotions. A talk on various happenings at the recent Lakeside convention was given by Mrs. Anna Wright. Mrs. DeYarmon will entertain her circle Sept. 17 at her home on Marion avenue assisted by Mrs. William Fudge.

Circle One met with Mrs. B. G. Campbell, 669 Harter avenue for a covered-dish luncheon. In the absence of their president, Miss Rose Cherry conducted the business session for the ten members present. Devotions were led by Mrs. Ward. A clever play entitled, "The Dollar" was given with Mrs. E. G. Corwin, Mrs. Wolfe, Mrs. Harding and Mrs. Cherry taking parts. Place for next meeting is to be announced.

Surprise Shower Given at Home Of Betty Boop

A surprise shower was held Wednesday at the home of Miss Betty Boop, 383 Lincoln avenue, for Miss Elizabeth Mike, bride-elect of Vincent Riley, jr., of Cleveland. Associate hostesses were the Misses Elsie Blank and Leona Hetler.

Bunco was played during the evening with prizes being awarded to Miss Betty Ann Mackert of Chicago, Ill., and Mrs. Charles Blank, who presented them to the bride-to-be. Refreshments were served at a long table decorated with purple and chartreuse streamers which formed a circle around the centerpiece of flowers.

Tags attached to the streamers revealed to the bride-to-be that the party was a shower in her honor. Gifts from the guests and from the hostesses were presented to Miss Mike at the close of the evening.

Vows Exchanged In Shelby Church

Miss Betty Jane Wilcox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Wilcox, 14 West Park drive, Shelby, became the bride of Pvt. Harold L. Walp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walp of Toledo, Wednesday evening at 7.30, at the parsonage of the First Methodist church at Shelby with Rev. George Beebe officiating.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Wilcox home for the immediate family and friends. The bride, who is employed at Strubble's drug store, is a graduate of Shelby high school. The bridegroom is a graduate of a Toledo high school After a short wedding trip Private Walp will be stationed at Camp Polk, La., and the bride will reside with her parents for the present.

DUO-DECEM PICNIC.

Duo-Decem club held a guest picnic at Middle park last evening. Guests brought by the seven members present were Mrs. Jack Scarborough, Mrs. Charles Buckley, Mrs Ken Woodman and Mrs. Mable Rice from Marion. Next meeting will be with Mrs. Sam Murphy, Arthur avenue, Sept. 3.

Irene Davis Wed To Jack Vesper On August 7

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Davis, 406 Orange street, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Irene, to Jack Vesper, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Vesper, 113 North Diamond street. Msgr. R. C. Goebel performed the ceremony in St. Peter's parsonage on Aug. 7.

The former Miss Davis chose a complete blue ensemble with a gardenia corsage for her wedding outfit. Her sister, Mrs. Frank Schiller, the attendant, had a blue dress and a corsage of sweet peas and roses. Mrs. Davis was attired in a blue dress with gardenia corsage. The bridegroom's mother chose a blue dress with matching accessories.

Serving as best man was the bride's brother, Michael Davis. Afterwards a reception was held at the Davis home. The house was attractively decorated with flowers and a large wedding cake centered the table. The couple then left for a trip through northern Ohio. For the present they are making their home with their parents.

Mrs. Vesper was graduated from St. Peter's high school and was employed by the Dominion Electrical Manufacturing company. A graduate of Mansfield Senior high school and Heidelberg college, Tiffin, Mr. Vesper is now with the Plum Brook Ordnance works in Sandusky.

Wilted Appetite? Try This Salad

When spirits sag and appetites wilt in the boiling sun of late summer days, toss up a sprightly green salad. Let your new pride and joy—the Family Victory Garden—supply the "makin's", and you supply the just-sharp-enough dressing that makes the salad inviting, palatable and tasty as a late summer mealtime favorite.

Whole meals can be built around a tossed green vegetable salad when "heavy" foods lose their appeal in the heat. Be sure, however, to have enough. Use a large mixing bowl—perhaps as a new note, one of your porcelain enameled mixing bowls. Even the medium sizes will hold enough salad for the normal-sized family and, in their glossy white or gay-colored finishes with contrasting trims, they add a cool and festive note that fits in perfectly with informal summertime meals.

You will want plenty of your Victory lettuce as sort of a "tossing" base for your salad. Then, of course, some tomatoes (which you can mention, casually, as being from your own plants) and some cucumbers, green peppers, other mixed greens, onions and a dash of garlic. Mix with this a French dressing that is just sharp enough to give the right flavor, and the result will be a salad you can be proud of.

COMMITTEE MEETING.

Hostess to the Mooseheart committee of the Women of the Moose at her home on Helen avenue last evening was Mrs. Grace Lehner. Plans for future activities were discussed. Mrs. Bessie Ricks was elected secretary-treasurer for the committee.

Naps Needed For Child In Wartime

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

DURING SUMMER a quiet period in the afternoon, say from one to three, has always been desirable. It is especially so in these days of war.

Let the child over six do the lunch dishes. If there are several children, boys or girls, let each take his turn. Those old enough should also help to get the lunch or prepare it alone. I wish more mothers were home administrators and fewer of them mere slaves to their children; then they would be better mothers and their children better citizens.

Child's Daily Nap.

Up to six the child should, of course, go for his nap each afternoon without exception. Older children also would do well to have a nap then, though I doubt if it should be required of many. Nevertheless, a quiet period of about two hours should be required of practically every growing child.

As a rule, no playmates should be allowed at that time, and the radio, except for soft, quiet music, should be silent.

Practically eevry youngster from 6 to 12, should be required to read or study from 30 minutes to one hour at the beginning of this quiet period, spending the remainder of the period at quiet amuseemnt or relaxation.

If the youngster is an apt reader, he could profit from reading good books borrowed from the public library. Let the poor reader read either a book or magazine with very easy vocabulary and many interesting illustrations. Whether at 8 or 18, the child may read poorly and in that event the main problem is to put into his hands materials far easier than those meant for his age and school level, materials that have strong interest appeal.

Even high school and college youths not employed might profitably set themselves at reading for two hours each afternoon. Others could do so at night. Those students who tried hard last year but failed or barely passed would make their school or college work much easier next year by this plan for, as sure as you live, skill at reading is the very essence of successful study.

Afternoon For Quiet.

For the average family of growing children, the daily rest period in the afternoon is very desirable. The sun is usually hottest from one to three. The children need the quietness; certainly the mother does. This period, too, is generally less subject to interruption by guests than is the evening. Besides, more of the family are together in the eevning. The family dinner hour can be a happier time in the home when an afternoon rest period is observed.

Regularity Important.

It is important that this period be observed regularly and that the reading period should also be regular, if the children are to profit by it. Parents who have no plans but merely talk about the need of reading and study get nowhere and annoy not only the youngsters but also themselves.

I have written a special bulletin on "Home Helps for Poor Readers," Part I for those under nine or ten, Part II for older children and youths. Either or both may be had by writing me in care of this paper enclosing a self-addressed envelope with a three-cent stamp on it.

UNFAIR ADVANTAGE +

CHAPTER IV

"It was a lot of fun," Amy declared gaily. "Much more of an adventure than traveling de luxe. But now I have to hurry. I have an appointment." She gave one hand to Paul. "Thank you for being so nice to me." And the other to Marcia Fairbairne. "Good-bye. I shall hope to see both of you again sometime."

She beckoned to the astonished porter who still stood behind Paul, holding her bag, and plunged through the revolving door and into a taxi that had just drawn up to the curb.

As it pulled away she looked back, hoping to see a pair of big shoulders and a curly, black head. But Paul hadn't come out of the hotel. He hadn't tried to stop her.

She realized that the driver was looking around at her questioningly. She hadn't the slightest idea what to tell him. Where would you go in Cincinnati anyway? He had slowed down, waiting. She fished in her bag for the slip of paper Paul had given her and read aloud "37 Fulton avenue."

* * *

Amy sat on the edge of the bed in the big clean old-fashioned room in Bridget Walsh's house in Walnut Hills and argued with herself.

"Why did he leave me like that with no explanations?" Amy would ask Amy.

Then Amy would say to Amy. "Why shouldn't he if he wanted to? He's under no obligation to you. He met you just 12 hours ago. And that was just an accident."

But who is this Marcia Fairbairne?" Amy would demand. "And what is she is Paul?"

Then Amy would reply, "That's none of your business! Forget it. Where's your pride, girl! . . . You have just ten dollars left now that you've paid the taxi man and your week's room rent. You have to hustle downtown and get yourself a job."

But while she unpacked a beautifully tailored silk blouse that had been bought a year before and had cost almost as much as she might hope to earn in a week and got out fresh chiffon stockings and clean white gloves, she kept thinking of that shining expectant look on Marcia's lovely face when she'd met Paul in the hotel lobby. A girl of Marcia's sort wouldn't look at a man like that unless he'd given her some right to.

As Paul had prophesied, there was no Brendermier Conservatory in Cincinnati, in the telephone directory or the city directory or in the memory of anyone she questioned. And, as Paul had also forecast, there was no job for a person who could speak French and converse with diplomats over a dinner table.

When she limped up Mrs. Walsh's front steps early that night, her white gloves were soiled; she had a run in one stocking—up from the heel—the sort you get from walking all day. The tall feather on her hat drooped dejectedly.

She felt the sting of sudden tears behind her eyelids when Mrs. Walsh—who, as Paul had said, was "Irish and motherly"—met her at the door and handed her a slip of paper.

"Number for you to call. Paul Bevan has been trying to get you all afternoon."

"I'm too tired to call anybody just now," she said as she went up to her room.

She wouldn't call him! Not for anything in the world! But as a precaution against any such weakness she tore the paper to bits and threw the bits into the wastebasket. But the next moment she was rummaging through the wastebasket, collecting the pieces. When the telephone bell downstairs rang an answering bell rang in her heart.

Mrs. Walsh would never have guessed it from the leisurely manner with which Amy sauntered downstairs or from the offhand way in which she sang, "Hello," into the telephone. And then hesitantly, "But I've had my dinner . . . Well, ye-es. I could go to a movie—in about an hour."

But Mrs. Walsh would have guessed it easily enough if she could have seen Amy taking dresses from her bags and inspecting them as critically as though she were preparing for a debut in Grand Opera, with the result that the person who came down Mrs. Walsh's front stairs an hour later bore little resemblance sartorially to the tailored young woman who had come over the mountains in Mr. McCloud's car.

Amy wore tiny black slippers with cut-out toes and a scrap of a black velvet dress with a tremendous white lace collar and a black velvet skull cap perched on her long, soft shining page-boy bob.

"You look like a naughty sophisticated choir boy," Paul declared, the dimples appearing at the corners of his mouth.

As he helped her into her chunky black fox jacket, that was all shoulders and not much else, he said, "I can't take you to a neighborhood theater! Come on, let's go downtown."

But out on the street he suggested, "Let's don't call a taxi here. Let's walk through Eden park and get a taxi down on Gilbert avenue."

"Oh, let's," she said enthusiastically. Queer how a round, harvest moon peering over the tops of city apartment buildings could make you forget how tired you were!

"Now he'll tell me. He'll explain," she thought as arm in arm they strolled along the tree-shaded walk, scuffling through piles of soft just-fallen leaves.

"I was sorry I walked out on you this morning," he said.

"I was under the impression I'd walked out on you," she answered quickly.

"Well yes, you did," he admitted. "What I meant was—oh, damn it!—Frani always gets me into trouble! How was I know she'd make an arrangement of the sort! I was so nonplussed for a moment that I couldn't seem to think. And before I could untangle myself, you'd left. I ran out after you. But you'd gone."

Then he had tried to catch up with her. That knowledge was balm to her hurt—but Marcia Fairbairne! What about Marcia?

"I took the bare chance that you'd gone to Mrs. Walsh's," he went on.

"I had to," she told him, head up. "I had to go some place and I wasn't familiar with the city."

"I called you as soon as I could, but you'd gone," he reproached her.

"I had to go job hunting," she said rather grimly.

"And now I want to know what you found," he said. No more about the episode of the morning! No more about Marcia! . . . Well, that was all right. But she felt as though a door had been slammed in her face.

* * *

They were so absorbed in talking of her experience that they were nearly downtown before they thought of hailing a taxi. By that time it was too late for a movie, and so in a cafeteria over coffee and the next morning's papers they talked of her plans for the next day. Paul wanted to meet her in the morning and go around with her, but that, she declared, would be absurd. And she didn't know where she would be at lunch time. So he asked whether he might take her to dinner.

"After dinner," he stammered, flushing clear up to his straight black eyebrows, "I have a—Frani is home and she's made some plans."

"With Marcia," she thought. But because, with a girl's perverse reasoning, She didn't want him to think she thought it, she accepted his invitation.

But there came a night, barely a week later, when she must accept his invitation to dinner if she was to have dinner at all. And this time absurdly, she turned him down.

They were walking through Eden park again and he came to a stop under a light. Looking down at her squarely, he demanded, "How much money have you?"

She tossed her head. "Enough for taxi fare tomorrow and I'll have a job by that time."

"You know you won't," he said. "My sister, Frani—well, do you remember I told you she has a youngster, Daphne, 5 years old? She's a mean little brat—a regular prima donna. How she managed to get so spoiled in five years is beyond me. What she needs is to go to the public school and have some youngster beat her up, give her a black eye. But what Frani wants for her is a cultured person who can teach her to speak French and to have charming manners — everything Frani herself has missed. You'd be just what she wants. But you can hardly consider a job of that sort."

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

Miss Whitlock met us at the door and put her finger on her lips.

"I've just gotten Mrs. Underwood to sleep," she said.

"After your long ride, I imagine all of you could do with some sleep, until Mrs. Underwood wakes up and you can talk to her."

"Isn't she Efficiency Edna, though?" Carolyn sneered, as Dicky and I ushered her upstairs.

"You'll like her lunch," I said non-committally. Then I sat down in the room allotted to Carolyn and spoke to Dicky.

"I'll freshen up for luncheon here with Carolyn," I said, "so you can have our place to yourself for shaving."

Carolyn glowered at me, but said nothing. Ignoring her patent unfriendliness, I made a hasty toilet, but stayed in the room until Dicky came for us.

The luncheon was delicious, and without incident. Carolyn made a palpable effort to act a courteous, friendly role while Miss Whitlock's eyes were upon her, but later in her bedroom spoke with cold hostility.

"Will it be possible for me to have a little while alone to myself?" she asked.

"Of course," I answered cheerily. "This room and adjoining bath are yours. You will be perfectly safe, here, too, for the windows are all barred.

Locked in Her Room.

"I am sure you don't want to get out," I said soothingly. "And I am sure you won't misunderstand when I tell you that I am going to lock your door on the outside."

"No, I won't misunderstand," she said icily. "It means that I am your prisoner."

"Indeed, no," I told her. "It is simply for your protection. If you will just push this button a bell will ring in the kitchen and someone will be up immediately."

I left quickly, giving her no time to explode, and locked the door after me, then went to Dicky.

"Is she pretty sore?" he asked.

"I'm afraid she is," I told him.

"Well, if she's trying to double-cross us again, who cares a whoop?" he said. "She barely kept her eyes open on the way down. She'll go to sleep like a lamb."

"And I know two others who are going to do the same. You're dead on your feet and so am I."

We both slept soundly until Miss Whitlock rapped. I opened the door a crack, and she said:

"Mrs. Underwood is awake and anxious to see you both. And am I right in thinking the young lady with you may be a source of excitement to Mrs. Underwood?"

"That inference is correct," I answered.

"Then if you don't mind," the nurse said, "we'll let her sleep for awhile."

"There's no hurry about the girl," I said.

As Lillian rushed into my arms when I entered, she held up her face for Dicky to kiss. Harry "bussed" me heartily, too, then he and Dicky took themselves off to Harry's quarters.

Lillian answered all my questions about the children and the farm, and we "talked a blue streak" until I suddenly said, with a start of remembrance, "Do you realize that we've both forgotten Carolyn?"

"Do you suppose she's still asleep?" Lillian asked. "If she isn't I want to see her so much. Just think, Madge; she was one of the last to see my baby!"

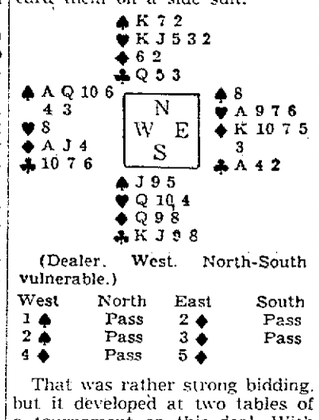
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

COUNT ALTERNATIVES

When you are in a tough contract and you see two different ways to play the hand, don't merely select one of them because of no particular reason. Count up what the result figures to be if you choose one method and compare it with the probable outcome if you pick the other plan. This is especially vital when the choice is between ruffing out certain losers and trying to discard them on a side suit.



(Dealer, West. North-South vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♦	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♦	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	5 ♦

That was rather strong bidding, but it developed at two tables of a tournament on this deal. With both spades and diamonds bid, South shied away from these suits, having a choice of leads between clubs and hearts, properly selecting hearts, the 4 at each table. After winning that with the A, one declarer decided to ruff out hearts and the other to establish spades.

The ruffer sent the heart 6 to the diamond 4, cashed the spade A, ruffed the spade 3 with the diamond 3, the heart 7 with the diamond J, the spade 4 with the diamond 5, the heart 9 with the diamond A and the spade 6 with the diamond K. He cashed the club A for his ninth trick, but then lost the last four tricks to the club Q, diamond Q and club K.

The other declarer, counting up, saw that by the ruffing method he could get only three tricks with his side suit aces, plus three with heart ruffs and three with spade ruffs, a total of nine, so then counted the other alternative. This showed that, if spades were divided and the diamonds three-two, with South holding the Q, he could drop trumps, ruff up spades and have three spades for heart discards, so that there would be only two losing clubs. So he chose that plan, which might make his contract.

After winning the opener with the heart A, he led to the spade A, ruffed the 3 with the diamond 3, finessed the diamond J, ruffed the spade 4 with the diamond 7, setting up the suit, cashed the diamond K and A to drop trumps, then ran the dummy's remaining three spades, parking his hearts on them. He cashed the club A then for the eleventh trick and conceded the last two.

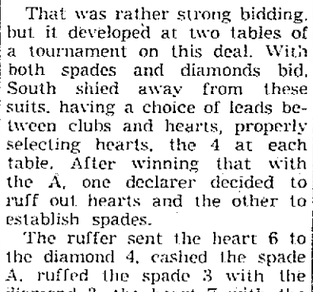
Tomorrow's Problem.



Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

What should be the attitude of West in the latter stages of the auction on this deal, if he decides to make a "smart" pass as dealer?

HOROSCOPE

FOR SATURDAY, AUG. 22

An unusually strenuous and aggressive state of affairs is presaged by the mutual and lunar aspects prevailing. This high pressure activity may characterize business as well as purely personal objectives. The stress, however, may be greatest in an effort to put over new and ambitious projects of major importance and which should thrive by indomitable persistence without the cooperation or approbation of employers, elders and superiors.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year in which the affairs should go forward under high tempo and with practical constructive ability and skill centred upon the launching of new and ambitious projects. Strenuous efforts, sound plans and prudence in essential outlay of funds and energies should be pushed to desired goals despite want of cooperation of influential persons.

A child born on this day should be energetic, enterprising and have much initiative and executive ability, with sound judgment and ambitions that should culminate in personal satisfaction.

MONTHLY BLOOD DONOR VISITS UNDER STUDY

Red Cross Committee Given Request By Cleveland's Motor Unit Staff.

Mansfield may become a monthly blood donation center for the American Red Cross if the blood donor committee of Richland county chapter of the organization sees fit to grant a request from the Cleveland mobile blood donor unit that pays its second visit to Mansfield, Sept. 3 - 4.

The request was taken under consideration at a meeting of the blood donor committee at Red Cross headquarters. Action was delayed until investigations can be made, John H. Finefrock, chairman, said.

A monthly visit from the mobile unit would mean the donation of 212 pints of blood each month from the Richland area and at least 300 available volunteers from which to draw. Because of shrinkage due to illness, absence or rejection the mobile unit requires the names of at least 150 persons for every anticipated 100 units of blood.

More than 300 appointments have been set up by the blood donor committee for the September visit of the mobile unit and at least half of this number is representative of persons who acted as donors in May. At that time 320 pints of blood were donated by Richland county residents.

The program is being stepped up by the national chapter and the goal for weekly blood units on a national basis has been set at 50,000. The estimated units for the next 12 months have been placed at 2,500,000.

Farley Scores Triumph Over New Deal

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

(Note: When the history of the swing music of this era is written, Tommy Dorsey will go down in the books as one of the most brilliant maestros of modern jazz. Tommy operates a pen as well as a trombone—and here he tells the touching story of His Old Man.—D. K.)

Tommy Dorsey Says—

The few novels that have been written about swing musicians—notably "Young Man With a Horn," "Piano in the Band" and "Send Me Down"—have all had a grim and tragic flavor. I have yet to read a story about an orchestra leader who was happy either in his struggle to reach the top or in his ultimate success. The Bix Beiderbecke legend is probably responsible for the widespread belief among writers that musicians are an unhappy and wretched lot.

It is true, of course, that most of the successful swing musicians today can look back upon a hard and rocky road, beset by prejudice and ridicule, as well as poverty and hunger. Swing was born through the persistance of a handful of musicians who held fast to their dream of a new idiom in American music, of a new freedom of expression.

But not all musicians are unhappy. Not all of them have had the bleak, tormented childhoods which writers love to describe.

Take the Dorsey brothers. Jimmy and I never had to hide out from classical exercises on the piano and secretly practice our jazz in the barn. We were born into a world of musical sound. We cut our teeth on Pop's musical instruments. Pop's music was our lullaby and our reveille. When I talk to musicians who had to get their musical education the hard way, I realize how lucky we were.

Pop died a few weeks ago. To the very end he never lost his enthusiasm for music and for new ideas in music. Pop loved the classic composers, but he knew the characteristics of every dance band in the business. I think Pop regretted leaving this world for only two reasons. He would have liked to know how the war came out and he would have liked a few more years of listening to music with his keen, analytical ear and his warm, responsive heart. A great musician passed away when Pop died.

Perhaps someday a writer will give us a novel about the small-town music teacher to whose door, with its weather-beaten shingle, hundreds of little feet have trod. Today the town music teacher is almost something of the past, like the country doctor or country lawyer. But in Pop's time, his studio was the spring from which the township drew most of its culture. He loved children. Nothing pleased him more than to watch the love of music growing slowly in some reluctant, scowling moppet. He was rewarded for his patience and his labors by seeing skill come into awkward fingers, by detecting at least the efforts of a young mind to express itself in music—timidly at first, then with certainty and joy.

I can't say when Jimmy and I first realized that our music was the most important thing in life for us. Perhaps, like Topsy, it just grew. But there it was—bigger than baseball and football and the school gang and the old swimming hole. Bigger than anything under the sun. Pop's inheritance had finally come through to his boys.

The rest of the story has been told often enough, how Jimmy and I formed our first band, "The Wild Canaries"; how later we joined the famed "Scranton Sirens" of Scranton, Pa.; how after ten years of playing with almost every name band in the business, Jimmy and I organized another band of our own, with Bob Crosby as vocalist; Glen Miller as trombonist and Ray McKinley on the drums; how after almost two years with the band, we split up to go our separate ways.

This isn't meant to be an autobiography of the Dorsey brothers. It isn't even meant to be a tribute to my Pop, but to a music teacher who happened to be my Pop.

* * *

In the end Pop did one last thing that he had always wanted to do, though he died without knowing it. His death brought Jimmy and me together again. It burned all the misunderstanding out of the years that had alienated us.

It made us realize that the world is big enough for two Dorsey bands, but not big enough for a quarrel between brothers.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — Glamour factory at war:

Whatever the outcome of the Tony Martin affair—the matter of the commission and Tony's auto—it looked from this end as if Hollywood held its chin up and stayed away from the wailing wall.

Coons

There was some talk that the mention of a movie name in connection with the court martial of a naval officer—charged with asking and receiving Martin's car as a gift in return for help toward a commission—would result in public sneers at the movie industry, at Hollywood's war effort.

But there was nothing like the general agitation when Lew Ayres stood on his constitutional rights at a conscientious objector. It may be that Hollywood is losing some of its old inferiority complex which caused it to quaver whenever one of Hays' chillun stepped, or appeared to step, off the popular beam. Or our town may be realizing that it can't assume, as an industry, the responsibility for the actions or beliefs of all its 30,000-odd workers.

JANE WITHERS' publicized—and real—fondness for pets is coming home to roost. Animal-loving soldiers, parted from their furry friends, are writing her to ask if she'll take the critters on as boarders for the duration. So far Jane has had to send regrets to a fitch from Michigan and a Great Dane from Mississippi. Consideration for her neighbors already had forced the farming out of part of her own personal menagerie which at one time included 29 hens, five roosters, a duck, two bass, three perch, countless goldfish, a donkey, a cow, a goat, turkeys, four dogs, a racoon, a fox. . . . Jane's first picture for Republic has a camp background. It's the musical "Johnny Doughboy" . . . (He won't find a rose in Ireland.)

EVEN Tarzan's doing it—fighting the Nazis. His next will have the jungle king tangling with saboteurs as well as animals. . . . And Joan Crawford, finishing the anti-Nazi "Reunion," will postpone a honeymoon and go directly into "Women in Uniform," story of the WAAC's. . . . "Hands of Mercy," upcoming feature, glorifies the army nurses in the Philippines . . . if heroines so glorious can be glorified by celluloid. . . . You can look for the next war movie cycle to be Russian—and not of the "Ninotchka" or "Comrade X" school this time. "Mission to Moscow" and "The Girl from Leningrad" are to be the forerunners . . . the latter perhaps with Garbo — who was Ninotchka!

CADET TRAINING IN SCHOOLS UP TO U. S. RULING

State Tells School Board Federal Decision Needed on Mansfield Request.

The question of whether the American Legion Cadet training shall be made a part of the Mansfield Senior high school curriculum must be decided by the U. S. Office of Education, according to a letter which had been received today by W. L. Miller, superintendent of schools, from the state department of education.

A committee representing McVey post of the American Legion went before the Mansfield board of education last month with a proposal that the cadet training be authorized this year in Senior high school. The committee asked that physical education instructors supervise the training as a part of their program.

The board deferred action until it could be learned from the state department of education whether the pre-military training could legally be made a part of the school program.

Replying to an inquiry from Supt. Miller concerning the Legion proposal, Director Walter L. Collins of the division of instruction of the state education department, said:

"I well recognize the demands made in the normal situation on your instructors in physical education, and I don't see how they could adequately handle the additional program which would be placed upon them.

"Our department has taken the position that we could not during this emergency authorize any acceptance of outside activities, unless those activities were approved by the U. S. Office of Education."

Dr. Collins added that there is a possibility that the federal office of education will soon propose a plan for mobilizing the young people in high schools in preparation for war service.

"I would suggest that your proposed program not be added to your course in the light of some developments which I am quite sure we shall hear about soon," he said.

Supt. Miller submitted a copy of the letter to Sam V. Fox, McVey post commander.

DENTIST DIES

Dr. Ray Kline, Ex-Mansfield Resident, Stricken.

Word was received today of the death of a former Mansfield resident, Dr. Ray Kline, 48, dentist in Cleveland. He died unexpectedly at his home last night.

He was a son of George Kline who operated a grocery store in Mansfield at West Fourth and Bowman streets for a number of years, and was graduated from Mansfield high school.

Rubber Official Says Synthetic Output to Meet Needs Then.

MILWAUKEE —(INS)— John L. Collyer, president of the B. F. Goodrich company, was on record today with the assertion that "certainly not before 1944" could the production of synthetic rubber be expected to meet the nation's needs.

In 1943, Collyer said, government plants are expected to produce from 250,000 to 350,000 tons and from 700,000 to 875,000 tons in 1944. This compares with the nation's rubber consumption of 765,000 tons in 1941, he said.

'WE CAN LOSE,' WILLKIE WARNS

Says War Can't Be Won By Just 'Outproducing the Enemy.'

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK — The American people were warned by Wendell L. Willkie today that unless they have faith in democracy, "we can lose this war."

Broadcasting on a March of Time radio program, Willkie, who is expected to leave on an official trip to Russia and the Near East as special representative for President Roosevelt, declared that Americans must stop wishful thinking and face the fact that "we are threatened with oblivion."

"Our enemies do not take their way of life for granted," he added. "They are willing to fight, to die for their beliefs. And if we are going to whip them, so must we be willing to fight and die for our cause.

"Too many of us still think this is a war only of guns and planes, only of production, and that we can win simply by outproducing and outgunning the Axis.

"We have the courage that made us a great country. We have the strength. But as yet the spirit that is the mainspring lies dormant and will awake only when we grasp the value or our senses."

Leaders in Washington, certain business men and labor leaders along with ordinary citizens "are not yet ready to postpone personal advantage for the national good," Willkie said he learned. This, he said must be done if America is to be victorious.

Also Claim 117 British Planes Downed in Raid on Dieppe.

BERLIN, (from German broadcasts) — (AP) — The German high command said today that 2,095 prisoners had been captured in the Dieppe attack. Of these 617 were reported wounded.

(There was no confirmation from Allied sources of these figures. Allied losses have not been given.)

A German communique said 117 British planes were shot down in the attack instead of 112 as originally reported. German plane losses were placed at 35 instead of the earlier-reported 37.

OPA REVEALS TIRE QUOTAS TO BE CUT NEXT MONTH; TRUCKS HIT

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The OPA today disclosed that tire quotas will have to be cut in September from the August level and called upon local rationing boards for the "strictest possible interpretation" of a recent amendment to the tire rationing regulations restricting truck eligibility to vehicles essential to the war effort or public health and safety.

In a letter to the boards, the OPA said it has been notified by the war production board that allotments for tires must follow a downward trend for the remaining months of 1942 to stay within the amount of rubber earmarked for that purpose.

Although the reduced allocation follows a seasonal pattern of prior years when truck use tapered in the fall and winter months, it comes at a time when war production and kindred activities are keeping many heavy vehicles at work night and day.

To provide tires for essential trucks the OPA last month changed its rationing regulations to deny tires to an estimated 200,000 vehicles carrying alcoholic beverages, soft drinks, candies, furs and other luxury goods.

The OPA said that during the last five months when quotas have been increased monthly to take care of additional requirements during the hot months, some local boards have followed a practice of carrying over unfilled applications from one month in anticipation of a larger quota in the next. With the trend now scheduled for reversals, however, the OPA urged that each application be considered in light of each month's quota.

BENNETT WINS NOMINATION OVER MEAD

623-393 Vote Hints Former Postmaster General To Be Key Man in 1944.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—James A. Farley stood forth today as a political personality to be reckoned with in the 1944 presidential campaign following his dramatic achievement in putting over Attorney General John J. Bennett, jr., as the Democratic nominee for governor of New York.

Bennett's 623 to 393 victory on the first ballot over Senator James M. Mead, President Roosevelt's choice, was conceded on all sides to be an amazing personal triumph for Farley who "broke" with President Roosevelt in the 1940 Democratic national convention over the third term issue.

Farley put Bennett across in a historic state convention over the opposition of Mr. Roosevelt, Governor Herbert H. Lehman, Senator Robert F. Wagner, sr., Democratic national chairman Edward J. Flynn, Tammany leader Michael Kennedy and other powerful New Deal politicians.

It was a unique spectacle, and one of the highlights of Farley's remarkable career. It was generally conceded that this was more than just a battle between Bennett and Mead—that, actually, it was a struggle between the New Deal and Farley for control of New York state's big bloc of 96 votes in the 1944 Democratic national convention.

Farley today was the recipient of hundreds of congratulatory telegrams from all parts of the country. Farley accepted his victory quiet modesty.

The state convention that nominated Bennett was unruly, marked by frequent outbursts and incessant booing of New Dealers advocating Mead's candidacy. It was further dramatized by the first open nose-count on a convention floor in years. The delegates had to announce—one by one—whether they were for Bennett or Mead. They went on record, right out in the open.

Farley, sitting on the platform, indicated that he did not approve the booing of the New Dealers but he couldn't do anything much about it. It was that kind of a convention. Tempers were strained.

Bennett, in accepting the nomination of a speech to the delegates just before adjournment last night, pledged that he would continue wholehearted support of the war program of President Roosevelt.

Up and Down THE STREET

The army and navy wants those seaboots, sweaters, mufflers and mittens that Mansfield and Richland county women are knitting for the Red Cross. And because the knitting program of the chapter is lagging behind due to vacation, virtually scores of telephone calls went out from the executive office today to urge production workers to finish their garments by Aug. 31. The first shipment of 250 garments was recently sent to the navy base at Norfolk, Va., and a like number of items is still to be completed.

How a Chicago boys' club, headed by Stewart W. Knarr, a former director of Mansfield's Friendly House, is meeting problems during the war is the subject of a feature article appearing in Sunday's issue of the Chicago Tribune. The Valentine Boys' club, a branch of the Chicago Boys' club, has a membership of 2,400 seven to eighteen-year-old boys, who, under Knarr's direction are taking instructions in first aid and air raid warning signals, studying radio and telegraph communication and acting as messengers and salvage collectors. The club is also prepared to provide 1,000 beds in case of an emergency. His wife, the former Marjorie Fisher, is now visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Fisher, 187 Western avenue.

To Capt. Edward Ellsberg, 50-year-old U. S. navy officer and cousin of Walter Ellsberg of Mansfield, goes the major credit for restoring the Red Sea port of Massaua in Eritrea after the Italians supposedly had wrecked it beyond repair. In nine days, Capt. Ellsberg and a small party of men brought the huge floating dock in the port to the surface although the Italians had dropped a 200-pound bomb in each of the dock's four watertight compartments. The British had said recovery of the dock was impossible. Capt. Ellsberg's picture and a story of his work in the important Middle East appear in the current issue of Time magazine.

TALK TOO MUCH

Government Administrators Scolded By FDR.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Declaring heads of some government agencies were talking too much, President Roosevelt today directed all government administrators to refrain from public debate of controversial questions of policy and to stop criticizing each other in such controversies.

Mr. Roosevelt said that such airing of divergent opinions in the public press were being seized upon and exploited by enemies of the United Nations. In identical letters to the heads of each department and agency, the president said:

"Disagreements either as to fact or policy should not be publicly aired, but are to be submitted to me by the appropriate heads of the conflicting agencies.

"The policy of the government should be announced by me, as the responsible head thereof. Disagreements as to facts can be resolved, if necessary, by investigations and surveys directed by me.

Hunt Negro Who Shot Policeman, Wounded Soldier

MACON, Ga. —(INS)— Military and city police today searched for an unidentified negro soldier who shot and fatally wounded City Policeman J. G. Favors and seriously wounded Sgt. M. W. Whitmire, a military policeman of Camp Wheeler, near Macon.

The negro soldier escaped after the shooting which occurred last night at the Macon bus station.

According to officers, Sgt. Whitmire walked up to the soldier to place him under arrest. As they talked, Policeman Favors stopped nearby. Suddenly the negro soldier started shooting, wounding both men and then escaping on foot.

Favors died in a hospital two hours later. Whitmire's condition was reported serious.

Military authorities at Camp Wheeler said the negro was wanted for being A.W.O.L. from Fort Benning but they did not have his name. They asserted, however, that there had been no riot and that no racial trouble was involved in the incident.

SECOND GROUP OFF FOR NAVY

13 More Depart, Second Group In as Many Days To Leave For Training.

Thirteen more youths from the Mansfield area left the city for entrance in the naval service yesterday, the second group to leave in as many days. Thirteen others preceded them yesterday.

Charles Scholtz, navy recruiting officer, said that 11 regular navy recruits and two for the naval aviation corps left the city by bus this morning. The regular recruits will go first to Cleveland and then to the Great Lakes training station. The aviation cadets will go to Columbus and then to the University of Iowa.

Leaving for regular service today were the following: George W. Kelley, 61 East First street; Ray T. Shaum, Mansfield R. D. 3; William H. Richey, 35 West Fifth street; Harold K. Gardner, Bucyrus, Howard A. Laymon, Harry J. Stanton, jr., and William C. Bown, all of Mt. Vernon; Arthur R. Lloyd, Ashland. George C. Savage, Mt. Gilead; Glenn W. Haas, New Haven; and Lowell F. McKean, Crestline.

The naval cadets were Robert E. Nimmons and Charles I. Hollenbaugh, both of Shelby.

U. S. MAY GROW DEADLY POISON

NEW ORLEANS —INS— The most effective rat-poison yet discovered—Red Quill—may soon be growing in eastern Louisiana, north of Lake Pontchartrain near Ponchatoula.

At the present time the only source of the drug in large quantities is from the shores of the Mediterranean, where it grows wild and is known as the sea onion. An extract made from the plant acts as an emetic on human beings, but not on rats. Therefore the rats swallow it in bait and die, but if a human being swallows some accidentally it will not stay on his stomach.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Two interesting stories of long ago in England are now available to children who use the library. One is a lively story of a minstrel's son. The other is a biography of Cardinal Newman.

ADAM OF THE ROAD, by Elizabeth Janet Gray—Adam was the son of Roger the minstrel. He was full of fun, he loved to entertain people, and his home was the open road. Also he had a dog named Nick who could entertain people as a minstrel's dog should. Early in the story Adam lost his father as they traveled along. His search for Roger leads from one escapade to another to make a dramatic story.

THE RED HAT, by Covelle Newcomb—Cardinal Newman is described in this biography as a sensitive and lovable person. The account of his boyhood and student days, his travels, his conversion to Catholicism, and his leadership in intellectual movements culminates in his receiving the honor of the "red hat." This man of genius comes to life in this accurate story of his life. The chapters of his boyhood home are especially delightful.

While all the world, or so it seems, is worrying these days about the transportation problem to and fro for the football campaign in this balmy autumn coming up, Mansfield maniacs of the pigskin variety can sit back and grin in solid comfort—but solid!

For the powers that be in things athletic at Mansfield high school, in drawing up this fall's football program, saw to it that six of the nine games on the card would be played at Tyger stadium.

And all this with the thought in mind that Mansfield fans like to see the Mansfield Tygers perform, and could afford to bring visiting teams to the home lot. They weren't worried, back in those schedule drawing days, about that bugaboo known as transportation.

Mansfield's schedule for this fall was printed on this page months and months and months ago, so the fans can't be blamed too much if they've forgotten the lineup and dates in the interim.

I forget things like that myself, and if I didn't carry a copy on the hip, wallet side, I wouldn't know right now whom, what, why, when and where we play this coming Indian summer.

And so many fans have asked me in the past few days, I think maybe this would be a good time once again to reveal all Here's the schedule.

Sept. 18—Akron West.
Sept. 25—Elyria.
Oct. 2—At Sandusky.
Oct. 9—Niles.
Oct. 16—At Springfield.
Oct. 23—Massillon.
Oct. 30—Portsmouth.
Nov. 7—At Canton McKinley.
Nov. 13—Toledo Woodward Tech.

Trips to Canton and Sandusky shouldn't be too hard to take by the usual motor method, but already there's quite a bit of talk among the fans about a railroad ride to Springfield.

All of the games on the schedule are billed for night play with the exception of the tilt at Canton. Whether the war effort will cut down on night play is something to worry about if and when a decision on power saving is made by the powers that be.

Advocates of night play still maintain that there's less power consumed at a night football or baseball game than there would be in the homes if the people stayed there.

* * *

Two of Mansfield's opponents this season get an early practice start, after passing up spring football. Springfield's Wildcats began sessions yesterday under Coach Jim McDonald, and Elyria gridders, after a get-together meeting with Coach Roy Clymer last Wednesday night, begin actual practice next Monday.

Meanwhile the Tygers, waiting for the Sept. 1 practice call, are getting in condition under training directions issued a week ago by Coach Paul Snyder.

* * *

"Those Portsmouth guys are rough and tough," says big Bill Lewis, Tyger end, who came here a year ago from Portsmouth. "Maybe I'd better sit on the bench that night." But you get the idea he's just kidding about that bench business.

Whitlow Turns In One-Hitter

Mize Parks That One Blow Outside Ballpark.

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THE Brooklyn Dodgers still have a little matter to settle with the St. Louis Cardinals before they will be ready for the world series, but their ace righthander, Whitlow Wyatt, is as fully prepared for the October classic today as he can hope to be.

Wyatt, who never has pitched a no-hit game in his dozen years around the major leagues, came as close as possible without actually achieving it yesterday when he let the New York Giants down with one blow as the Dodgers triumphed, 2-1, in a twilight-arc light game

His only mistake was in trying to throw a fast one past John Mize, who demonstrated that he has recovered from a recent injury by parking the ball behind the center field score board for his 20th home run.

The victory, opening an important four-game series, boosted the Dodgers' National league lead to seven games over the Cardinals, who were idle

In the only other National league game, the Cincinnati Reds snapped a six-game losing streak by turning back the Pittsburgh Pirates, 5-3.

The Boston Red Sox, refusing to concede the American league flag to New York's front-running defending champs, walloped the Yankees, 7-4.

At the other end of the junior circuit, the Philadelphia Athletics took a doubleheader in their cellar series with the Washington Senators.

A 17-hit attack on three Washington pitchers gave the Athletics the opener, 9-2 The nightcap went 12 innings before the A's triumphed, 6-1.

The Chicago White Sox came from behind with six runs in the fifth inning to stop the St. Louis Browns, 8-5, in a night game.

Ohioans Win All-Star Tilt

Tiltonsville Captain Passes to Victory.

WHEELING, W. Va. — (U.P.) — Eastern Ohio gained its first victory in the three year series with the West Virginia Panhandle in the annual high school all-star game, played before 13,000 fans in Wheeling stadium last night.

A deadly passing attack gave the Ohioans a 20-7 triumph over the mountaineers All of the winning team's touchdowns came in the first half on passes.

Dick Leonard of Titlonsville, co-captain of the Ohio team, did most of the passing. He pitched one to Voytecek of Martins Ferry, good for 16 yards and a touchdown. Merkel of Dillonvale scored the other Ohio touchdown.

West Virginia scored in the final period after two penalties against the Ohio team had placed the ball on the one-foot line. Gudo De Vecchis of Weirton plunged for the score and Lalick added the extra point.

Most of the game was played in West Virginia territory. Ohio made 11 first downs to West Virginia's seven.

Travelers Go To Loudonville

Mansfield Travelers go to Loudonville this evening to play the Clippers at 6 o'clock. The Travelers have defeated the Clippers twice this season, but Loudonville still thinks it can beat the Mansfield ball club and will get its third chance.

Sunday the Travelers meet the strong Cleveland Containers club at 2:30 at the Fairground. The Containers have two hurlers who have played in organized ball.

Bill Martin will pitch for the Travelers tonight and Bob Winbigler will handle the hill chores Sunday.

STEEL WORKER PLAYS FOR GOLF CROWN

CHICAGO — (U.P.) — Steve Kovach, Pittsburgh steel worker, will attempt to upset favored Wilford Wehrle, Racine, Wis., today in the final round of the Chicago national amateur golf championships.

Kovach took a one-sided contest from Frank Kovack of Waukegan, Ill., 9 and 8 yesterday.

Wehrle had to go 38 holes before he could eliminate Mike Stolarik, Great Lakes Naval Training station, Great Lakes, Ill., 1-up.

Trapshooters Start Firing

Grand American Gets Under Way at Vandalia.

By FRITZ HOWELL

VANDALIA—(AP)—Clay targets, leaden pellets and the roar of 12-gauge shotguns filled the air along the amateur trap-shooting association's quarter-mile firing line today as the 43rd annual Grand American got under way.

The Friday, Saturday and Sunday programs called for "tune-up" events as the nation's premier marksmen sharpened shooting eyes for the championship races running from Monday through next Friday.

While the 1941 field of 1,100 shooters was not expected to be duplicated—because of the war—General manager Ray Loring of the A.T.A. said he had reservations from every state in the union, all of Canada's provinces, Cuba and the Canal Zone.

Four of the clay target sport's finest, now gunnery instructors in the army, are expected to get special leave to compete in the game's "World Series" They are Lieut. Joe Hiestand of Hillsboro, O., who has won everything in the book except the Grand American handicap, holder of the 16-yard long run record of 1179, now stationed at Moultrie, Ga.; Capt. Phil Miller of French Lick, Ind., now at Las Vegas, Nev.; Lieut. Vic Reinders, the chemistry professor from Waukesha, Wis., who won the all-around title last year, stationed at Miami Beach, Fla., and Maj. J. B. Grier, the professional star from Rockland, Dela., who is stationed at Governor's Island, N. Y.

Something new has been added to the big shotgun show, for the Grand American handicap with its $10,000 or more in prize money, will be contested over the 200-target route. For 42 years, since the fixture was inaugurated, it has been a 100-target event, and only two recognized stars have won it.

Three Tennis Tilts Played

Championship Matches Booked at Woodland.

The News-Journal city tennis tournament swung into action yesterday with Jim Rakestraw defeating Don Pluck, 6-1, 8-6, and Rakestraw and Pluck winning in the doubles from Deyarmon and Seymour 6-1, 7-5

In women's singles Mary Ettinger won from Bettie Pealer 6-8, 6-0, 6-3.

* * *

The Woodland club tournament reaches championship play Sunday with Enos and Gadfield meeting Bourns and Slaybaugh in the doubles finals, and Enos playing the winner of the Gene Rudolph-Ruhland Isaly match in the singles finals.

* * *

In order to speed up the championship play, matches in the finals will be over the two out of three route. Singles Sunday are scheduled at 2 o'clock and doubles at 3:30.

Krantz Beers Liked In Tourney

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—The Krantz team of Toledo was a heavy favorite to win the Ohio men's football championship in the annual tournament which opens tonight at the State Hospital field.

The Toledo team has won the title the last two seasons, playing under the sponsorship of the Page Dairy. Toledo teams have taken the state championship six times since 1934 when the Crimson coaches of that city went on to win the national title.

Pitching star of the Toledo team is Victor Knurek, big Polish hurler whose smoke ball has helped win the title for Toledo in three of the last four tournaments.

Four games open the tournament tonight: Fort Hayes vs. Dayton, at 6 p. m.; Dover vs. Degraff Foods at 7 p. m.; Columbus Fergusons vs. Youngstown Donnell at 8 p. m.; Toledo Krantz vs. Elyria at 9 p. m.

All Stars Sharpen Up for Bear Game

It's pretty warm yet to be running around in heavy football togs, but the College All-Stars, who meet the Chicago Bears in a charity game in Chicago Aug. 28, don't seem to mind as they play practice games. Steve Juzwik, former Notre Dame star, is pictured above taking the ball around end for a touchdown in one of the sessions at Evanston, Ill., where they are in training.

Birds, Brews Stage Battle

Association Pennant Waves as Prize.

(By Associated Press)

With Kansas City pushed into the background—temporarily at least—Columbus and Milwaukee were determined today to make it a two-team race for the American association pennant.

The Red Birds remained a game and a half in the lead by nudging out Toledo, 3 to 2, in a 10-inning battle last night, while the Brewers dissolved the Blues, 6 to 2, to close the series in Kansas City with four wins in a row.

* * *

Augie Bergamo was Columbus' hero. He clouted his first homer of the season in the eighth inning to knot the score, 2-2, and in the extra 10th he doubled to drive Preacher Roe across with the winning score.

* * *

Only one of Toledo's runs was earned as Roe pitched superb ball for his fourth win of the year and his mates backed him up with a 10-hit assault against Johnny Marcum bouyed up by George Myatt's four blows.

Woody Rich hurled his first shut out of the season as his four-hitter gave Indianapolis a 3-0 decision over Louisville.

Best whitewash job of the night went to Harry Kelley, veteran Minneapolis righthander. He staged a two-hit feat to beat St. Paul, 2-0, as the Millers clinched the intercity series.

Indians Seek Bit of Revenge

Meet White Sox Who Started Losing Streak.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— The Cleveland Indians, beginning tonight, have a chance to avenge their lamented slump against the club that started it—the Chicago White Sox.

Winding up their last western road trip in the Windy City, the Indians dropped three straight to the White Sox. Since then, they have won only two games in eight starts.

Mel Harder will be seeking his 10th victory against Edgar Smith in the opener of the four-game series.

Still limping from an ankle injury, Harder expected the soreness would be out of the leg in time to take the mound assignment He was struck in the right ankle last Monday by a smash off Don Gutteridge's bat in a game against St. Louis.

Harder had a special reason for wanting to be in shape tonight. He was charged with the 11 to 1 loss in the opener of that hapless series in Chicago. Smith has won three and lost 19.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—Looks as if the two all-star teams will have to play all the army's "big league" football this season. . . . Yesterday's order cancelling competitive football for the air corps technical training school not only wiped out the Keesler field program, but it provided a hint as to what may be going on in other branches . . . Maybe you noticed that Camp Lee Va. scheduled several good college teams, then called the whole thing off to concentrate on intra-camp sports; and Camp Shelby, Miss., cancelled its program, which included a tussle with the Cleveland Rams when it was discovered that maneuvers were due in mid-season. . . . And Fort Knox, Ky., still hasn't landed a "name" coach although it has a schedule and the team is practicing.

ONE-ROUND KNOCKOUT

As a golfer, Fred Apostoli apparently throws as many hooks as he ever did in the ring. . . . Fred played a round with Sam Snead at the Norfolk naval training station and afterward confessed: "I've never felt so lonesome in my life. . . . Sam was straight down the middle and I was all over the course—by myself."

INCIDENTAL ITEMS

Tani Mauriello goes against Jimmy Bivins in Cleveland's next big fight show, getting the spot declared open when Anton Christofordis fizzled against Nate Bolden last week, but the Sept. 10 date they agreed upon will be changed. . . . The reason Ben Jones is shipping Whirlaway to Camden for the Trenton handicap Aug. 29 instead of keeping him at Saratoga to run for just as much dough in the Saratoga handicap is that Ben wants to do a favor for a friend who is an official of the Garden State track. . . . The world series broadcast will include short-wave transmission around the world to reach American soldiers and sailors on foreign service. . . . The Chicago Bears have used George Wilson as a decoy on forward pass plays so often that his teammates call him "Quack, Quack."

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Howard Preston, Cleveland News: "Cleveland wins a second place award in a national contest for the elimination of needless noise and it is understood that the fact that Indian rooters had nothing to cheer about this year didn't influence the achievement."

Corp Smoky Joe Coomer, Pittsburgh Steelers' tackle last season, writes his old boss, Bert Bell, that he has been sent overseas but he's still hoping to organize a football team at his new post.

Evans Umpires Benefit Game

Pulls For Both Ruth and Walter Johnson.

NEW YORK — (INS) — A final touch of nostalgic and crowd attracting charm was added today to the Army-Navy relief game next Sunday at the stadium between the New York Yankees and Washington Senators.

Billy Evans was called from comfortable retirement at his Cleveland home to umpire the epic battle that George Herman Ruth will wage against the hoary arm of Walter Johnson.

Evans' answer to the call came faster than his lightning decisions when he was wearing the blue of the American league umpires.

"You bet I'll be there," Evans wired Ed Barrow, president of the Yankees. "I umpired Johnson's first game in major league ball back in 1907. And I officiated when Ruth hit his record breaking 60th home run in 1927.

"Who do I think will come out best in the duel?" Evans said. "Well, you've got the greatest hitter of all time against the greatest pitcher. Time has stolen away their once potent fire, but they still are greater.

"I'll have to stand back of the plate and call 'em Sunday before I could answer that question. I'll be pulling for both 'boys' and calling 'em like I see 'em, just as I did while on active duty."

MAURIELLO SIGNED TO FIGHT BIVINS

CLEVELAND — (U.P.) — Tami Mauriello, New York heavyweight, today was signed to meet Jimmy Bivins in a 10-round fight on Sept. 15.

Matchmaker Larry Atkins said that Maurcillo would receive $12,000. The 22-year-old Italian fighter has been defeated only three times in 44 professional bouts.

Bivins will be fighting for the first time since he knocked out Joe Muscato last month.

Rookies Start In Ram Lineup

Plunkett and Hightower Draw Opening Assignments.

EAST LIVERPOOL — (AP) — Two rookies will be in the Cleveland Rams' starting lineup tonight for their war benefit exhibition game with the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Warren Plunkett, late of Minnesota, will be at quarterback, which with the Rams is a blocking position, and Ben Hightower of Sam Houston State Teachers college, Tex., will draw the assignment at right end.

* * *

Also on view for the first time will be Cleveland's new offensive formation, which Coach Dutch Clark devised in the manner of the Chicago Bears' T formation. In this system, the quarterback does not handle the ball, each play starting with a direct pass to the fullback, tailback or right halfback.

These positions will be occupied at the start by Corby Davis, line-plunging fullback, by passflinging Parker Hall at left half and Dante Magnani at right half.

The Rams and the Steelers are not scheduled for a National league clash this season, and tonight's fray will be their only 1942 meeting.

Johnny Wilson, the Rams' regular right end, was injured in scrimmage last week, giving Hightower the starting berth. On the left side of the line Cleveland will have Jim Benton at end, Chet Adams at tackle and Riley Matheson at guard. Beyond Bill Conknight at center will be Wilfored Thorpe at right guard, and tackle Boyd Clay.

MIXED PRICE CHANGES RULE STOCK MARKET

Modest Improvement Shown In Retail Spending Throughout Nation.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Slightly mixed price changes ruled early transactions in today's stock market.

Up fractionally were Chrysler, Consolidated Edison, General Motors, Texas Co., Marshall Field and Montgomery Ward. Small declines were posted for U. S. Steel, Sears Roebuck, J. I. Case, General Electric, Westinghouse, Warner Bros. and U. S. Rubber.

Owners of merchandising shares noted the Dun & Bradstreet survey disclosing modest improvement in retail spending this week compared with the week before although volume remained under that of the like 1941 period. For the country as a whole the year-to-year decrease was placed at 6 to 10 per cent.

Studied was a reported sharp drop in the business of installment concerns which deal principally in furniture but also handle jewelry, electrical appliances and other home products. Current distribution in this field was said to be running between 25 and 40 per cent under a year ago, due in part to tightening of installment restrictions as well as shrinkage in supplies.

REVEALS ALLIED NAVAL VICTORY

Writer Tells of Night Fight Just Before Raid on French Coast.

ships accompanying the convoy were sunk before we proceeded to Dieppe.

The storming of Dieppe and the landing effected by waves of tanks prevented the Germans from using their powerful flanking batteries.

Many of our forces were wounded and some were killed but I learned that the casualties suffered approximated what was to be expected from an operation of this kind.

The victorious raiders brought back to England numerous German prisoners. I saw them grinning as they stood on the whaves where they were landed, trying their hardest to make friends.

The Americans, Canadians, British and Fighting French who participated were thoroughly delighted in the outcome of the raid.

"In actual combat we felt ourselves better than the Germans man to man," said one.

"Yes," said another, "we lost a lot of men but I think the German casualties were very heavy."

When a couple of Commandos prepared to disembark from the boat on which I travelled to Dieppe one asked the other:

"What's your objective?"

The other replied:

"To land on this beach. What's yours?"

Answered the first:

"That battery. Let's go!"

The officers and men who battled on the Dieppe cliffs termed the engagement an all-time model of success in coordination. All the forces were landed with near-perfect timing at their appointed places and stormed up through barbed wire and land mines under protection of barrages from their own destroyers and red sweet covering ships.

Allied troops said they were convinced they had learned the technique of breaking through strong defenses. They stressed the point that the Germans all along must have guessed that the United Nations were planning to hit the continent and this fact alone compelled them to withdraw men and equipment from the Russian front.

The Dieppe raid, they said, undoubtedly will force the Nazis to further weaken their Russian offensive and they believed this action was in accordance with the strategy discussed recently in Moscow by Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin.

Authoritative sources said that the Germans must of necessity pull more men back from Russia or lay themselves wide open to the Allies.
